They Shall Never Thirst

Said Jesus, the Great Teacher, of those who rightly accept his precepts.

NEVER THIRST

Yes, this is for you, who today are—

- HUNGERING to know the meaning of life;
- YEARNING to understand why we are in this world;
- LONGING to experience a God-given life purpose;
- THIRSTING for fuller truth about existence;
- HOPING to see again those "loved long since and lost awhile."

MONROE COUNTY MUST TAKE CARE OF AGED COUPLE SAYS MORGAN

Responsible for Two Inmates of Private Home for Aged at Sparta

MADISON, Wis.—In an opinion given William W. Gleiss of Sparta, district attorney for Monroe county, Attorney General Morgan held that the county was responsible for the upkeep of two persons who came to the private home for the aged in Monroe county, and later would not be cared for at the home under an agreement they signed upon entering.

The agreement was said to have stipulated that the aged persons would be cared for the remainder of their lives upon payment of a fee of $500, but that they would not be afforded hospitalization, nor cared for in the event of becoming insane.

One of the persons mentioned in Mr. Gleiss' letter was said to need hospital treatment, and the other has become insane.

Mr. Morgan held that they had become residents of Monroe county, provided they had been there one year, despite being residents of the private home, and that, if they were in need, it was proper for the county to aid them.

NEWS OF REPRIEVE WAS MISTAKE AND MURDERER HANGS

UNION, Mo.—While kneeling in prayer in his cell at the Franklin county jail, Charles Jacey, 18, St. Louis, who was hanged Friday, was told a telegram had arrived from Governor Hyde, at Jefferson City, granting him a 30 day reprieve. His joy was short lived, however, for a few minutes later, when the original message arrived, it was disclosed that a telegrapher had made a mistake in transmitting the message over the telephone and that Jacey must die.

The telegram was one from the governor confirming his granting of a thirty day reprieve recently to John W. Carroll, 24, of Fairbairn, Pa., who was sentenced to hang with Jacey following the conviction for the murder of Benjamin Scherer, a garage owner. The telegrapher confused the names, Jacey's tears of joy immediately turned to tears of sadness.

The trap was sprung at 9:36 a. m. and he was pronounced dead 14 minutes later.

RECLAIMED FARMS AVAILABLE SOON FOR SERVICE MEN

WASHINGTON.—More than two hundred farms on government reclaimed lands will be opened to entry by former service men next month. Until sixty days after the opening, the department announced Friday, none but veterans will be permitted to make filings but others will be accepted later if any claims remain unfilled by soldiers at that time.

The farms are located on the North Platte irrigation project, Wyoming, and will be opened for entry Sept. 9 while others on the Shoshone project, 57 in number will be opened one week later.

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL LIKENS THE "BOOTLEGGERS' REBELLION" OF PRESENT TO "WHISKEY REBELLION" OF EARLY DAYS

MADISON, Wis.—"The Bootleggers' Rebellion," is the characterization made by Meritt Hull, former secretary of state, in a statement issued favoring the full enforcement of the law against the moonshiners. Hull charges that "quibbling lawyers" and a "liquor press" will not be able to stem the tide for the funeral for the liquor traffic in this state.

"Lawyers can always be found who are ready to rush into court for a price, making a loud blow about the constitution and personal liberty," says Mr. Hull in his statement. "And all this fuss, published daily, is taken by some people as a serious matter. Some even doubt the stability of government when assailed by what seems to be so formidable a class."

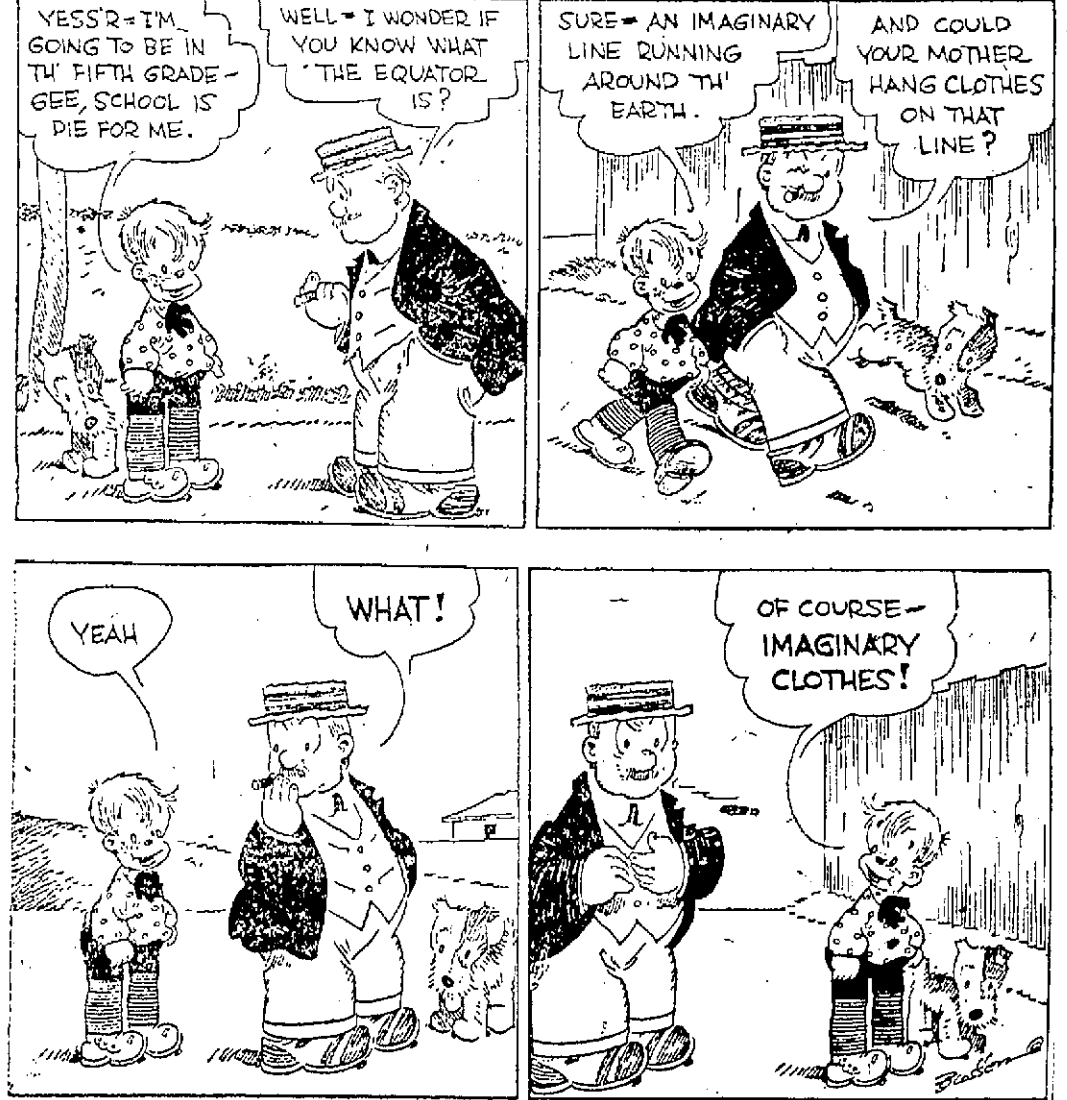

"There is nothing to it, however. The lawyers who represent the objectors will get their fees, the daily press will make a lot of money from the clamor raised, and the courts will continue to rule that both state and nation have the right and power to abolish illicit liquor selling, just as they had to abolish licensed liquor dealing."

"With all the cry about the slack enforcement of liquor laws, many forget that in the days of the licensed saloon, bootleggers and blind pigs were very common, particularly in large cities, and many arrests were made. Moonshining was also such an industry that in some states the calendars of the federal courts were crowded with cases against makers. It is probable that there are not many more of such offenders now than when the liquor traffic held full sway, but the daily press had less to say about them then."

"In the early days of the republic there was what was known as a 'whiskey rebellion,' started by a band of men who objected to the revenue laws. It lasted quick and ended quicker. The bootleggers' rebellion may not be so strong as was the whiskey insurrection of a century ago, but it will have just as much show in supplanting the moral advancement of the nation, and be productive of no greater results."

"The people of this country have determined that booze selling must stop, and all the quibbling of lawyers, and the clamor of the liquor press, all the cowardice and evasiveness of officials who should support and enforce the law, but do not, will not seriously interfere with that determination."

BURGLAR-PROOF LOCK SAVES BANK FROM ROBBERY

KENOSHA.—Crackmen made an effort to blow the safe of the Bristol state bank at the village of Bristol just west of Kenosha at an early hour Friday morning. The outer doors of the bank were broken open and four holes were bored into the doors of the vault. A special burglar proof lock is declared to have saved the bank. The men are believed to have worked in the bank for four hours and the last of four explosions which took place just after four o'clock Friday morning awakened the people of the village. It was said that their were three men in the party and they escaped in an automobile. "Not a cent was secured," said W. A. Upson, the president of the bank.

COUPLE ADRIFT IN SMALL BOAT ON LAKE ERIE ARE RESCUED

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—J. H. Rooke and Miss Frances McGarran were rescued from Lake Erie Friday after being adrift and helpless in an open power boat for 30 hours.

A coast guard cutter picked up the helpless boat after receiving a wireless message of distress from a freighter which sighted the boat adrift.

Rooke and the young woman were on the verge of collapse.

The couple had started Wednesday night for a short lake ride Rooke said. The engine went dead and the wind carried the boat out in the lake.

MISSING HURLEY SEARCH WARRANTS FOUND AT MADISON

SUPERIOR, Wis.—The original search warrants used by the federal agents in the raid at Hurley which resulted in the arrest of 57 alleged violators of the prohibition act, have been located in the office of clerk of the court at Madison. They have been mailed to Superior and are expected here some time Friday.

The warrants were filed at Madison by George Threl, group chief in charge of prohibition enforcement in western Wisconsin. He so informed District Attorney Wm. D. Dougherty after that official had acknowledged his inability to locate the documents.

Though the location of the warrants remedied a serious defect in the government's case against the Hurley saloon men, they will be attacked by counsel for the defendants as invalid in that they were not made out in a manner complying with the law.

MASON CITY, Iowa.—Two airplanes becoming entangled five hundred feet in the air, while Ray Kock, a student flyer was attempting to transfer from one to the other, crashed to earth here Thursday night, killing Kock and W. W. Johnson, one of the pilots and severely wounding Ray McWhorters, second pilot. McWhorters is in a hospital with a broken leg and bruises. The crash occurred when a ladder suspended from Johnson's plane caught in the other machine below. While attempting to pull apart the cable broke but both pilots lost control of their machines.

The three were practicing an act which they intended to perform for county fairs in Minnesota. A large number of spectators saw the fall.

ALL MEN REPENT
GOD commandeth all men everywhere to repent.—Acts 17:30.

A Bit of Good News

THE statement of Superintendent Egge in Chicago the other day that there were good prospects for an early resumption of the air-mail service between Chicago and the Twin Cities was mighty good news. We in La Crosse are glad for it because it means the return of air-mail service to this city, with all that may mean to present and future civic progress and prosperity. We fought hard to make La Crosse an air-mail station, were extremely disappointed to lose it, and will welcome it back as delightedly as we did on its inauguration. But that the air-mail is coming back is good news beyond its local significance. It means, we hope, that the value of the air-post as a factor in the encouragement and development of the aerial industry in the United States is not completely overlooked in official quarters. Under existing law, the only support that the government may give to airway development outside of army and navy activities lies in the postal service. It is little enough, but at that too much to be thrown overboard at a time when France, England, Germany, Italy and Japan are developing air service, commercially and for military purposes, by subsidies and every other sort of governmental encouragement. The United States, whose Lillienthal, Chanute and Wrights made possible the miracle of aviation, are already far behind the rest of the world in progress along the path that these great scientists and inventors opened to mankind. We can not afford to lag still further back. It is not inconceivable that some day aerial supremacy may mean as much to nations as merchant marine and navy do now. To accept inferiority without a struggle is a dangerous as well as ignoble attitude for the richest and most prosperous nation in the world.

Disarmament

THERE is much in President Harding's communication bidding the powers to a disarmament conference which invites confidence. Perhaps its greatest strength lies in the fact that it does not ignore the truth that this is a popular movement backed by public opinion generally among all peoples, but while it goes far in this direction there appear to be reservations which, if enlarged under pressure, might lead to mistakes similar to those which rendered the Wilson enterprise vulnerable. That both army and navy, and new fighting agencies now in development, may be considered is distinctly encouraging.

Disarmament especially concerns nations which have great armaments, and so it is natural that only the four great military and naval powers are being consulted on the ground floor. But such is the extent of influence and control of the large nations over smaller peoples that the adjustment of differences affecting the fate of these smaller peoples will interest these lesser nations quite as much as the greater. Fundamental to disarmament is the removal of the causes of war, and these lurk largely in matters of trade and political authority extending over the earth. That these can be so disposed of as to remove the probability of war without consulting the smaller countries seems so unlikely that one must surmise such consultation as the conference progresses. One of the first difficulties will doubtless be due to the efforts of all the major powers to keep their own colonies and spheres of influence out of the discussion; just as Japan has sought to do as a condition precedent to her participation. Nothing but the relentless pressure of public opinion upon the backs of the statesmen will thwart this, nor need one suspect that those who fatten on war manufactures will neglect any opportunity to create and magnify complications and objections.

The president's declaration for open negotiations is qualified by reservations that are disquieting. He "would not open all sessions to the public," according to Washington dispatches. Under so broad a statement he would have made good his position were a single open session held. Here again is the Wilson pitfall, condemned by republicans. Will Harding slip into it? Secrecy is a web that draws its victim further and further in. It may be urged that to hold the first ground-laying conferences in the open would break the meeting up. One may doubt the merits of this statement. Nations might withdraw for secret reasons they would not even dare set up in the open for their people at home to read. Nations might withdraw for good reasons in the open, but surely they would be less likely to withdraw for bad. Secrecy seems not essential for honest compromise, but it is the natural cover for dishonest demands and cowardly concessions. If this is not a people's movement it will never get anywhere; if it is a people's movement it will proceed better under the eye of the whole world. And if it is a people's movement, and if those who represent the people now wreck it upon selfish quarrels, it will become a world issue to be revived following the next elections. Once this of ours was a queer country in which it was said that "the will of the people shall be the law of the land." Now all the world is queer (in this sense of democracy) excepting—Japan, and Japan is a little queer. For the time is here, with only a few housecleanings to come, when "the will of the peoples shall be the law of the world."

Flying in China

IF we don't watch out, even the backward Chinese are going to beat us at the airplane game. They have inaugurated an air service for passengers and mail between Peking and Shanghai and it is proving so successful that the Peking government is arranging for its extension over the entire country. In the meantime nobody in our government, outside of the flying divisions of the army and navy, seems to be taking much interest in airplane development.

Poor Proof

SENATOR FRANCE, at Riga, just out of Russia, accuses Dr. Ed. W. Ryan, American Red Cross commissioner in the Baltic States, of having instigated the Kronstadt revolt against the bolsheviks, last winter. The senator says he is going to prove it by officials of the bolshevist foreign office. If that is the only proof France can offer to support his charge we should say that Ryan need not worry.

Airport

AMSTERDAM, long a famous seaport, is winning a name as an airport. Within two weeks recently 270 passengers passed in and out of a single airdrome there. There are regular air schedules between Amsterdam and London, Paris and Brussels. Speed the day when the United States will have regular airplane service between all its large cities.

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

The Syrians of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes on the north side will celebrate the Feast of the Immaculate Conception beginning tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. The feast will start off with fireworks and ice cream in front of the church on Mill street and will conclude the next morning with high mass at 9:30.

The home of Andrew Peterson at 1217 Berlin street, was struck by a freak bolt of lightning at 6:30 this morning during the electrical storm which struck La Crosse. The south wall of the building was jarred loose from the rest of the building, all the window lights except three were shattered and the plaster in every room in the house was cracked and broken. Occupants of the house were not injured.

TELLING MISS DREW

BY JANE OSBORN

It had been a dull executives' meeting—seemingly to Rodney Blaine a great waste of time. Mr. Stewart, the president of the concern, was going to Europe and Mr. Stone, of the Chicago office, a sixty-year-old contemporary of Mr. Stewart, was coming to take his place in the New York office. The meeting had been called to make final arrangements—arrangements which it seemed to Rodney could have been made as well without his presence.

But when the six other executives were making their departure from Mr. Stewart's office and Rodney was trying to escape the usual threshold parley, Mr. Stewart stopped him, placed a fatherly hand on the young man's shoulder and asked him to wait.

The others gone, he turned back to his desk, requested Rodney to close the door and then to sit down beside him.

"There is something I want you to do—something simple, but very important," began Mr. Stewart. "I have the greatest respect for Mr. Stone and know that his coming here may be fraught with many inconveniences and anxieties. Now, I'm having the office turned about a little to please him. He rather likes a rocking chair in his office. I don't know whether it is a Chicago custom—never noticed—but I've ordered a couple of them to be put here, and I've had two additional electric fans and—by the way, that reminds me—"

"Of what you wanted me to do?" asked Blaine, somewhat bored by all these considerations for Mr. Stone.

"Only this," Mr. Stewart hesitated and then plunged ahead. "It's about Miss Drew. It would be a trifling difficulty for me, you see. She is an excellent young woman, and in an excellent position. I don't want to lose her. That's why I'll need some one with a great deal of tact. Dear me, we couldn't get along without Miss Drew. You will be tactful, won't you?"

"You see," Stewart continued without waiting for a rejoinder. "Miss Drew knows so much about the business, we couldn't possibly have her go. She is to be Mr. Stone's secretary. I'm used to her, but Miss Drew is well, rather—"

"Yes," agreed Blaine, calling to view the snapping black eyes and vigorous, waving black hair of Mr. Stewart's secretary. "She is a trifle." "Quite so. I don't mind it now. Though I must confess she rather upsets me at first. And of course, if she becomes really annoyed at any one I imagine she would be a terror. It is her temperamental. We spoil her, here. No, headstrong, fine looking girls like that usually are spoiled when they have unusual brains."

"You surely don't expect that I can dull the edge of her temper or tame the untamable, do you?" "Oh, no, no. Just suggest that as Mr. Stone is a stranger, and not very young nor in exceptionally good health, and possibly a little slow in some respects—for she is especially impatient of slowness—that she might treat him with gentleness. We decided before you got to the meeting that some one would better suggest this to her, and for reasons we decided that you would best be able to do it."

"But I have so little business association with Miss Drew," protested Rodney.

"That is one of the reasons why we thought you could undertake the matter. Then you are young—"

Mr. Stewart paused and a kindly smile came into his eyes. "Really, she is not ill-natured. When she has called me down, as it were, I have always deserved it. When I have been playing better golf than business, I feel like a small boy who has been playing hooky. She is the sharp-tongued schoolmarm. Yet I believe she is barely twenty-one. I don't care how you go about it, Blaine," said Mr. Stewart with an air of finality, "but I depend on you to broach the matter and I know you won't fail down."

This was the hardest assignment that Blaine had ever had in his association with Mr. Stewart, and did not feel that he was asked by him to do a thing which he was not capable of doing.

Rodney had never taken much notice of her before, but now he deliberately studied her face and her carriage when she was not looking. He had made up his mind that the only way to go about it was to become friendly with her, to get her confidence and then to make an honest broach of the matter. So Rodney Blaine cultivated Miss Drew's acquaintance. He was unsuccessful in the usual wedge of an invitation to luncheon, so he sought to make the acquaintance of those who knew Miss Drew socially.

He would meet her after working hours and thus show his fineness. Meanwhile Mr. Stewart had called and Mr. Stone came to take his place. Mr. Stone, who proved to be a blond young giant who accomplished twice as much as Mr. Stewart, albeit he sat in a rocking chair and indulged in three electric fans at once. He had an endless capacity for work, and often when Rodney Blaine left at half past five he still heard the heavy voice of Mr. Stone dictating to his stenographer behind the closed doors of the executive office. Something possibly the long hours and the strenuous business methods of Mr. Stone, very decidedly softened the edge of Miss Drew's sharp temper. Her dark eyes snapped less fire now and the waving black hair that seemed to fly her high-spirited nature seemed to wave more softly to her face. It had almost been forgotten in the office that she had ever had a temper to be dreaded.

Three months had passed and it was the eve of Mr. Stewart's return. Rodney Blaine had done his best. He had never fallen down on an assignment before, and he had not had his little talk with Miss Drew simply because she had never given him an opportunity. Now he was, dancing at the same country club, studying Spanish in the same class, even go-

HAVE YOU SENTENCE
SENSE? TEST WITH
SCRAMBLED WORDS

Do you know a perfect sentence when you see it, or do you punctuate mere groups of words as sentences?

A certain college professor says that many people have no sentence sense, even when they enter college. They write sentences without subjects and without predicates.

Test yourself. If you have no sentence sense, start right in to cultivate it.

The following mental test is called a "Disarranged Sentence." Test of this order were used during the war in the military examinations that were given to our soldiers.

The test consists of a number of "scrambled" sentences. The object is to arrange the words in their proper order. Each group of words, if rearranged properly will form a perfect sentence.

Remarkable Discovery
It has been discovered lately that the great artist, Rembrandt, before painting his pictures, wrote capital B's and for signatures many times over his canvases. These were covered over by the painting and have only lately been brought to light by the X-ray.

The discovery was made by Mr. Francis H. Clarke, an English art critic. He gives as an explanation that Rembrandt needed a means of detecting fraudulent works dishonestly sold as his own, and believes that the artist would be very much surprised today to know that his secret has been discovered.

FAMOUS ANECDOTES
OF FAMOUS PEOPLE

Mark Twain

At one time when Mark Twain was very busy with one of his earlier books, he sailed for a tour of Europe with his family. While on shipboard he kept up his writing.

One day as he went to work he left word with his little daughter to explain his absence to anyone who inquired.

"If they ask for me," he said, "say that I won't be home. I am only going to write an anecdote."

A few minutes later a friend asked the child where her father was.

"He won't be home long," she replied. "He said he is only going to ride a nanny-goat."

Not Very Often

An undertaker from the great city was visiting in the country.

"People out here don't die very often, do they?" he remarked.

"No, only once," was the reply.

ONE REEL YARNS

FAT'S DOWNFALL

The game was going camping. Judge Marshall had told his son Hal that he might have their shack at the lake for the week-end. Hal was the rug-leader of the gang so it took him only a few minutes to gather the fellows together and plan a camping party. There were eight in the gang but Skeet and Fat could not go till Saturday night. The other six left on Friday afternoon.

As the fellows sat around the camp fire Friday night they planned what they should do the following day.

Hal's Idea

"Tell you what, fellows," said Hal, "let's see Fat's got for him and have a little fun tomorrow night. I know where there is a saw and we can saw the legs of his cot almost off. Then when he gets in they will break and he'll go tumbling on the floor. Hal chuckled gleefully at the prospect. "It's a good idea," he said. "I had it tried on me once and it sure lets you down with a thud."

"Won't your father care if we spoil one of his cots?" Pete asked dubiously.

"Oh, we can fix it up afterwards," Hal replied carelessly. "He won't care—much. Any way it'll be worth it. Can't you just see old Fat picking himself up off the ground?"

At this they all roared with laughter. It would be a great joke on Fat. He was always playing tricks on them, too.

Fat Arrives

When Skeet and Fat arrived the next evening Hal had the cot all fixed for Fat's downfall. He was anxious for the fellows to go to bed so the fun would begin, but Fat could not wait till morning to explore the camp. It was eleven o'clock before they finally turned in.

Two was the first to nod to me. "Go to bed, look looks good to me," he cried as he gave a spring and lit in the middle of the cot with a bounce.

Six months were wide open all ready to roar at the result but nothing happened. Slowly the fellows closed their mouths and looked at each other bewildered.

The Jokes on Hal

"Oh, Skeet," thought Hal, "I didn't saw the legs far enough across." Suddenly he felt tired and cross. Without stopping to undress further he threw himself down on his cot. Immediately there was a loud crash followed by a dull thud and Hal lay sprawling on the floor.

"How—how—how," laughed Tub. "If you hadn't been so anxious to go to bed I never would have guessed."

Parables of Safed the Sage

THE PARABLE OF THE ICE-WATER TANK

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

HERE were two young mothers from Italy, and they had each of them several children, whereof the oldest was a little girl. And she was about the age of the daughter of Keturah. And they rode upon the train. And they had a bottle of the shape at the bottom was like unto a diamond, such as they have in Italy. And it held it might be the fourth part of a pint.

And as soon as they were seated in the train, the little girl filled the bottle at the Ice Water Tank. And she drank thereof, and she carried it to each of the mothers, and to each of the children. And they drank every one of them, all that was in the bottle.

And by the time the last one had been refreshed, the first one had been refreshed. And the little girl began again, and went around the circle of the two families. And they drank of it as freely as it had been red wine.

Now the little girl wore a dress of Mrs. Harding Blue, and stockings that were green, and a red handkerchief upon her head. And her mother pinned up her dress to her waist, for she was wetting it at the water tank.

And it was lucky that the aisle of the car was covered with Battleship Linoleum which was very thick; for the little girl trod a path back and forth and back and forth until the water tank must have been nearly empty.

And I said, Behold what a journey from New York into the interior of this great and glorious nation meaneth to various travelers upon the same train. There are mountains and rivers and bridges and tunnels, and these two families see no more of them than the women who are playing bridge in the Pullman. But for them, a tour from the Atlantic ocean to Pittsburgh was one long and joyous procession to the Ice Water Tank.

And who shall say that of all folk upon that train, they passed their time least profitably? For I looked that night in an Inn, and the man who had been there before me left a larger assortment of glassware than had any meaning in my life; and I would fain have joined him unto the two families of the children of Italy, and fed him ice water till he had enough.

"But what I'm asking you is whether Blaine is in love with her. Why does he dog her around so?"

"I guess I told him to," said Stewart.

Abe Martin

Master Bobby Moon, age seven, fell exhausted in a sody water parade today. Who remembers when only gentlemen waited for the ladies to go first?

art, weakly. "But it's all right. He doesn't love her. You needn't worry about that. I'm sorry to have you take her away but—"

Mr. Stewart never finished the sentence, for Mr. Stone had hurried into Miss Drew's office to deliver the words of a long-postponed proposal, which did not come as a surprise and that did not wait long for an answer.

LITVINOFF OFFERS TO AID AMERICANS IN LEAVING RUSSIA

Will Grant Request of Hoover and Free all Prisoners, Says Envoy

DECLARES THAT TASK WILL BE LONG AND TEDIOUS ONE

Famine Will be Over Before all Can Leave, He Says

RIGA.—(By the Associated Press)—The Russian Soviet government will combat any attempt to interfere with the political questions into the Russian famine relief, but it is sufficiently practical to see that if the holding of Americans in prison is an obstacle to the feeding of a million Russian children it is best that Herbert Hoover's stipulation in this respect be granted, declared Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet special envoy here, Friday night to newspapers.

Those held in prison in Russia, will be released, declared the Soviet envoy, and every facility to leave would be given by the Soviet government to any Americans in the country, even to the extent of advertising for them in the newspapers.

Litvinoff stated that British, French and other subjects whose repatriation had been arranged long ago were still appearing now and asking for passports to leave Russia. He added that if the United States insisted on delivery of all the Americans on the list handed him the Russian famine probably would be over before the last man can leave.

"Mr. Hoover has stipulated that all Americans imprisoned in Russia should be released," the Soviet representative continued. "They have been kept in prison for certain offenses against the government. Ono Kalmatiano, even had been condemned to death."

The newspaper Nory Put, the official Soviet organ at Riga, has said that Kalmatiano (one of the prisoners who came out of Russia this week) had been condemned in connection with a plot to organize a military mutiny against the Soviet government in 1918.

RHODA ROYAL'S CIRCUS IS COMING HERE NEXT FRIDAY

Every dead wall and all the bill boards in the city for over a week have proclaimed the fact that Rhoda Royal's greatest, biggest and best show would be in town Friday, August 19, and give two grand performances. Don't you make a mistake and think that it is a little, one night, one-acting affair, where a small boy works his way in by carrying a pail of water to the elephants, and after the show has gone, sits sadly and wistfully listening to some of your neighbors and their happy children tell of the marvelous features they saw in the menagerie and the wonderful acts they saw in the three rings beneath the dome of the colossal big top, where a hundred of the world's best known acrobats, gymnasts, leapers, aerialists, riders and clowns disport themselves for the edification of the multitudes that come from all over the county, and those adjoining, to see this, the biggest and best of all big shows. In the way of a show there is about everything from a white rat up to an elephant, and the rarest of all rare animals, the Bovalapus. The only one ever exhibited in this country, and the only one perhaps you will ever have a chance during your life to see, as they are becoming extinct even on the Upper Nile. The free street pageant at ten in the morning will give you a faint idea of the magnitude of this gigantic amusement institute, and it will be worth coming a ways to see.

In The MOVIES

AT THE THEATERS TODAY
 Rivoli—Thomas Meighan in "The Frontier of the Stars"; Screen Snapshots; Devereux's orchestra and Comedians; Sing of the Shriners' official song.
 Strand—Jubilee Girls in "The Music Master"; Harry Carey in "The Music Master"; Fox News; Riviera orchestra.
 Casino—Jack Hoxie in "Cyclone Bliss"; comedy, "On With the Show."
 Strand—Franklyn Farnum in "The Fighting Stranger"; comedy, "Dialing Room, Kitchen and Sink"; La Crosse-made film comedy, "Can You Beat It?"

AT THE RIVOLI
 A good story with a swiftly moving plot, a popular star, gorgeous settings and lavish costumes are promised in the Elaine Hammerstein picture, "The Girl from Nowhere," which will be the featured attraction at the Rivoli theater Sunday.

The story tells of a wealthy and beautiful daughter of society, Mavis Cole, who becomes infatuated with Herbert Whitman, a society coxter, who induces Mavis to elope with him. But before they can be married Mavis learns of Whitman's poor character and takes refuge in a hunting lodge buried deep in the snow-covered hills.

Alone and weary, she is surprised by the caretaker, who demands to know why she is trespassing on "Jimmy Ryder's" whereupon, much to her surprise, Ryder himself appears on the scene and in a spirit of chivalry he confirms the claim.

From this strange predicament the story winds through a maze of strange situations and eventually leads Mavis to the happiness she had sought in the beginning.

In "The Girl from Nowhere," William D. Davidson plays the leading male role, while Huntley Gordon is the "heavy." George Archambault directed.

RIVIERA THEATER
 An expose of the methods used in a crooked gambling house is one of the features of interest in "The Freeze

Out," the Universal attraction at the Riviera today, with Harry Carey in the starring role. The picture shows Carey as a "straight" gambler who arrives in a lawless Western town to drive out the crooked followers of the game of chance.

AT THE CASINO
 Another success has been scored by Jack Hoxie in "Cyclone Bliss," shown at Casino Theater today. "Cyclone Bliss" is an unusual western feature and affords Jack Hoxie numerous opportunities to display his ability as a horseman and as a fighter. In addition to Jack Hoxie, "Cyclone Bliss" has a cast of characters who are all well known to the fans here. This picture is a worthy vehicle for Jack Hoxie, his riding is unusually daring and there are several thrills that he gives the spectators in this picture.

AT THE STRAND
 One of the most exasperating angles of the motion picture making is the absolute honesty of the camera. Franklyn Farnum at the Strand today in his newest picture, "The Fighting Stranger," has a record for exact precision in the making of his photoplays.

Fake stuff doesn't go with Farnum. In "The Fighting Stranger" he pulls off a hair-raiser when he crosses the gaping abyss of a canyon hand over hand on a rope in order to save his dearest enemy from the infuriated hands of a madman. Regardless of the fact that Farnum did the stunt for theatrical effect there was just as much danger attending its accomplishment as though he had done it under the stress of actual necessity. The proof is there, for the entire side of the jagged canyon is shown leading down into the bottom of the gulch hundreds of feet below.

VOLIVA DECLARES WAR ON OPPOSING CHURCHES IN ZION

Leases in City to Come Under Personal Supervision of the Overseer

ZION CITY, Ill.—Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion, renewed his attack Friday on religious organizations which have opened churches here in opposition to the Zion church with the announcement that famous leases of Alexander Dowie will be changed to prohibit the transfer of property without the personal approval of the overseer.

The new leases will be for a period of 1,079 years, the seventy-nine years being added to cover the period during which the Lord is expected to come and take his saints out of the world for seven years. At the end of the seven years, according to Dowie's teachings they will be returned to establish His rule throughout the world for 1,000 years.

Dowie's leases made in 1900 were for 1,100 years. The flight of the saints to heaven was to take place some time during the extra 100 years. The new leases running 1,079 years, will terminate like the originals, in the year 3,000.

The leases forbid the sale or storage in Zion of pork, land or other products of swine; the erection or operation of theaters, movies, circuses, dance halls, secret societies, the keeping or sale of intoxicants, keeping, sale or manufacture of tobacco, running a drug store, selling or keeping of oysters or other food pronounced unclean in chapter 14 of Deuteronomy, and the use of any property as the residence or office of a physician or surgeon.

BLANCHE BATES
 The best American play in a decade and one of the best acted. That may be truthfully said of "The Famous Mrs. Fair," by James Forbes, which brings Henry Miller and Blanche Bates, two of our most distinguished American stars to the La Crosse theater Wednesday, Aug. 17. Here is presented an ordinary family of means, such as may be duplicated by the thousands in any American city. Father, mother, son, and daughter—all are average folk, and the domestic difficulty in which they become involved is equally commonplace.

Yet the interest aroused is absorbing, and the effect produced intense, because Mr. Forbes has created genuine, living characters, and has lent to their troubles all the poignancy of humanity and truth. Thus, with the acting equally attuned to reality—as it is at the hands of these distinguished players—the lesson of "The Famous Mrs. Fair" is brought home with peculiar intimacy and unforced appeal.

One says lesson; and yet this potent social play is one of those rare comedies—a problem play without argument or sermonizing by the author. The audience is left severely alone to draw its own conclusions from the experiences of the characters.

"MARY ROSE"
 No announcement in the course of the theatrical season is more welcome than that of the coming of a new play from the hand of Sir James M. Barrie, and when, with such an announcement, comes the news of the early engagement of one of the most popular of our younger stars, as well as the event takes on double significance and importance.
 Of more than ordinary interest, therefore, is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Ruth Chatterton in Barrie's newest play, "Mary Rose," at the La Crosse theater, for one performance, Friday evening, August 19th.
 In "Mary Rose," Barrie's imagination has its most whimsical and charming scope. His story combines in the most pleasing fashion all those qualities most admired by his following: the fantasy of "Peter Pan," the quaint imaginings of "A Kiss For Cinderella," the exquisite love story of "The Little Minister," the tender humor of "What Every Woman Knows," and the gripping interest and appeal of "Dear Brutus." Through three absorbing acts Barrie tells the story of a young girl who mysteriously disappears into the depths of a little island, in response to a wondrous and irresistible call, to return many years later, herself absolutely unchanged, but to find all about her strange and different, and herself well nigh forgotten by those to whom she was most dear. Of this situation, intense in its interest and gripping in its appeal, Barrie avails himself as no other dramatist can.

BRIDGE PLAYERS ARE THE REAL GAMBLERS DECLARES ATTORNEY

Milwaukee Scores Morgan Attack on Church and Lodge Lotteries in State

MILWAUKEE—Fashionable East-side women who sit about bridge tables were termed "the real gamblers" by District Attorney W. C. Zabel, who said that the lotteries in churches and lodges that hold lotteries were exonerated.

"Mr. Morgan's outburst was utterly uncalled for," said Mr. Zabel. "If he had asked us to prosecute the higher-ups it would be different. But he has said nothing about the bridge playing for high stakes. Gambling in private homes constitutes the real gambling menace in Milwaukee."

"I shall follow the policy I have always followed. I shall prosecute all cases of commercialized gambling that come to my attention."

"I have heard of no lotteries except for religious or philanthropic purposes. Once in a while some one sells chances so that some poor sick individual may get the benefit. If Morgan wants us to prosecute every case in which a church or a lodge holds a raffle I am going to think a long time before I start acting."

"What do I think of the Elks Club-rafts? I am not an Elk but the Elks, I understand, do as much for charity as any other organization in the state. They help the poor regardless of any affiliation with the club. The money was raised for fraternal purposes and directly or indirectly, will be used for charity."

"If the public wishes me to prosecute every church or sewing society that holds a lottery, I should like to know it. There is not a church in the city that has not at some time or other had a wheel of fortune or some other device in its basement to raise money for a new organ or a new carpet or a stained glass window. If these are such grievous violations of the law as Mr. Morgan seems to think they are, I am eager to have the public tell me."

CHICAGO MAN ASKS DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF WIFE'S LOVE

Mrs. McGovern, about 35, is teaching in Chicago public schools. It is charged that Bowlin kissed her, made violent love to her and wrote her passionate letters on various occasions during the last three years.

Ho Knew Lawyers

A southern lawyer tells of a case that came to him at the outset of his career, wherein his principal witness was a dourly named Jackson supposed to have knowledge of certain transactions not at all to the credit of his employer, the defendant.

"Now, Jackson," said the lawyer, "I want you to understand the importance of telling the truth when you are put on the stand. You know what will happen, don't you, if you don't tell the truth?"

"Yassir," was Jackson's reply. "In dat case I expects our side will win de case."

RACINE SHOWS HOW ANY CITY CAN PUT ITS UNEMPLOYED MEN TO WORK

By NORRIS QUINN

RACINE, Wis.—Up here they're naming cigars, streets and babies after Thomas M. Kearney, a Racine lawyer, who is the father of the Racine employment plan—an plan any progressive city can emulate.

The fruits of the plan have been: Feeding the needy among 12,000 jobless men and their families. Rotating men in jobs so that everyone is employed part of the time. Stimulating municipal improvement and private enterprise with a view to making more jobs.

Last year Racine the biggest industrial city in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee, was faced with a serious problem. Eighty per cent of its working people were thrown out of their jobs. Some employees who had served 30 years were dismissed.

Study Made

A committee of 15 citizens was formed to study the situation. Kearney was chairman. Kearney and his associates worked out the Racine plan and presented it to Mayor A. J. Lunt and the city council.

The aldermen said the plan looked good but inquired mildly where the city could get money to put it through. Racine bankers answered that question. They told the council they would take up a $150,000 city bond issue, each bank taking a portion proportional to its size.

So the city council passed the bond issue, got the money and the Racine plan started operation.

How Plan Works

Here's how it works: Relief of needy cases is handled by the Central Association, formerly a charitable organization. Families in need of food apply to Miss Catherine Mehder, director.

Miss Mehder a trained social worker, makes a personal investigation. If the case is family, a ration card is given to the family.

Any tradesman in Racine will honor these ration cards.

The cards are renewed from week to week. The butchers and grocers are paid from the fund created by the bond issue.

The task of finding jobs was turned over to H. G. Presser, head of a local employment agency. Now Presser is the supreme employment dictator of Racine. He tells men where to go to work and tells them when to quit their jobs to make room for someone else.

Presser systematically rotates men on jobs. A man works one week, then another man takes the job. This next week the original man is put back again. So everybody's working part time.

Married Men Preferred

Married men are given preference. The bigger a man's family, the more days he's allowed to work. Single men are given restaurant meal tickets every week, entitling them to three substantial meals daily for seven days.

Here are some typical cards from Presser's files, showing the type of men he has to deal with:

A Polish moulder, 30 years old, laid off at Christmas. Worked off and on at odd jobs since. Given part time work.

An American janitor. Is buying home. Laid off at Christmas. Has suffered pneumonia, influenza and undergone operation. Given light work.

A Danish machinist. Out of work since May, 1920. Heavily in debt. Underwent operation. Given light work.

"I get a chance to do some good Americanization work," Presser says. "When I give a man a job I tell him it's time he became a citizen and advise him to go to night school."

"Professional beggars and hogs stand no chance under the Racine plan. We're weeding them out of our lists."

Open New Jobs

Kearney and his committee meanwhile are trying to create new jobs. They've induced the city to start paving and repairing public buildings. That means work for many. And they're trying to make Racine manufacturers forget post-war pessimism and start working with full forces again.

They've caused the Wisconsin Legislature to grant the unemployed six months' grace in paying taxes.

The Racine plan is working so well that scores of inquiries come in daily from cities where the unemployment situation is grave.

"Any city that has the courage to put out a bond issue and has bankers who'll take it up can work out the Racine plan," Kearney says.

Sister Knew

"Father knows you're going to marry my sister," said the little brother.

"But I didn't know it myself till a day or two ago," said the astonished suitor.

"Oh, so she's told you, too, has she?" replied the little brother.

Sarcastic

Neighbor—"Sir, I am starving."

Neighbor—"Here, take this dime and tell me how you became so miserably reduced."

Neighbor—"Ah, sir, I was like you. I was too fond of giving large sums of money to the poor."

INVESTIGATORS AT EVANSTON TO SEEK MOTIVE FOR SLAYING

Probe Former Relations of Kennedy, Burch and Mrs. Obenechain in Illinois City

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—A navy diving crew, at the request of Sheriff Traeger of Los Angeles, has been ordered to aid in the ocean-side search for the missing barrel of a shotgun the rusty stock of which has been turned over to District Attorney Woolwine by a beach camper near Santa Monica Canyon mouth in the belief that it is part of the weapon used in the slaying of J. Bolton Kennedy, the broker. Kennedy was shot near his summer cottage in Beverly Glen, eight miles inland, August 5.

Mrs. Obenechain Friday denied that she was withholding anything from the police. She said that the only version of the shooting she knew she had told, and that she was shielding no one.

District Attorney Woolwine said that he believed all the essential proofs were now at hand but establishing of a definite motive for the shooting would strengthen the case materially. To aid in this phase of the case an inquiry into the former relations of Kennedy, Burch, Mrs. Obenechain and possibly other persons at Evanston, Ill., and points in the mid-west was authorized.

The big public events which will feature the ceremonial are on the program for this afternoon. With a parade of all uniformed organizations and Shriners, ending at Riverside park, where exhibition drills and a band concert will be given, the afternoon will be well occupied.

A masked band concert of all visiting bands will be given between 5 and 6 this afternoon, standard time, in Riverside park.

A buffet luncheon for all Nobles and candidates will be served at the fair grounds between 5 and 7. Starting at 7:30 tonight, the final degrees will be conferred upon the class of candidates in the big tent at the fair grounds. With the ceremonies concluding at 9:30, the nobles and visiting ladies will enjoy a moonlight ride and dance on the steamer G. W. Hill, returning to the city at midnight or later.

Ladies Entertained

The river excursion for the ladies of the visiting Shriners on the steamer G. W. Hill left at 11:30 standard time with about six hundred ladies on board. The boat will return in time for the parade this afternoon and they will remain on board and witness the parade as it reaches the Levee.

The excursion was entirely in charge of the ladies. Each visitor was provided with a box lunch prepared by the ladies of the local committee. The boat left thronged with a happy crowd, most of them wearing the white fez with the red letters designating the wearer as belonging to the family of a noble.

which formed an American flag. Princess Tripoli then bid the audience farewell and the Camels' Capers was over.

Very few home-talent shows can stand the test of being presented outside of their own locality and the fact that "Camels' Capers" scored a success in La Crosse is sufficient proof of the real talent and ability displayed by the members of the Chippewa Valley Shrine club. The orchestra also under the direction of Theodore Steinmetz, played no small part in putting the various acts across effectively.

FIND EVIDENCE OF ANOTHER BODY IN GRAVE OF PRIEST

New Evidence Incriminating Hightower Uncovered in Sand by Sheriff

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Constable S. A. Landul of Colma, on his return to San Francisco early Saturday from Salda beach on the Pacific ocean, south of here, announced his belief that another body is buried in the immediate vicinity of where the remains of Father Patrick E. Heslin, murdered Catholic priest, were exhumed last Wednesday night. This, with the unearthing of further evidence against William A. Hightower, held in connection with the death of Father Heslin, were the outstanding developments looking to the solution of the mystery.

Constable Landul said that late Friday night he and others dug in the sand near the priest's grave but were forced to abandon the search because of a coming fog. He stated the search would be continued when the fog lifted. A strong stench, probably that of a decomposing body, rose from the spot where the digging was carried on, he declared.

The new evidence against Hightower is in the form of four pegs, gyp rope, cinch blocks and other articles dug up in the sand around the grave of Father Heslin. These tent accessories, according to the police, fit a small tent removed by them from the hotel room of Hightower who led the authorities to the priest's body for the announced intention of securing the $5,000 reward offered for its recovery.

"The tent pegs and cinch blocks were removed from a sand ledge directly above the priest's grave to which Hightower led authorities last Wednesday night."

Digging at the grave also revealed additional papers and currency belonging to the priest. They included a California state hunting license, an automobile license, bank receipts and a five and ten dollar bill. Some of the papers and both bills had been pierced by bullets.

While these new developments were reported, plans were complete for the funeral of Father Heslin from St. Mary's Cathedral here Saturday. Friday night the body lay in the Cathedral and a service for the dead, attended by hundreds, was held.

LEAGUE COUNCIL TO DISCUSS SILESIA AT MEETING AUGUST 20

President Ishii Expected Soon to Issue Call for Special Session

PARIS.—By The Associated Press.—Viscount Ishii, president of the council of the league of nations, is understood to have decided to summon that body to meet on August 20 for the purpose of considering a solution of the Upper Silesian problems. In agreeing to submit the Silesian question to the council of the league Premier Briand is asserted to have waived the rule providing that decisions of the council must be unanimous and the impression is that he will accept the verdict of a majority of the council. Emphatic dissatisfaction with the decision of the supreme council to call on the league of nations to settle the Silesian question was generally expressed by the press here today.

BET HE LOST HIS JOB AFTER THIS WAS MADE PUBLIC

CHICAGO, Ill.—Mrs. Lillian Lebel, granted a divorce Saturday from Anthony Lebel employee of a gasoline filling station will receive $75 a month alimony because, she said, her husband makes $200 a month extra by cheating motorists.

"How can you expect your husband to pay $75 a month alimony when his salary is only $165 a month?" the judge asked.

"Oh he makes about $200 a month extra," she answered.

"Motorists pay for the amount of gasoline they order not for the amount the filler puts into their tanks. In this difference is where my husband makes his extra money."

WOMAN IS GIVEN 30 DAYS FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT SATURDAY

Mrs. Fred Hampshire, Known as "Spike", Arrested on North Side Thursday Evening

One of the most vulgar woman characters it has been the experience of the local police department to handle is the case of a woman giving her name as Mrs. Fred Hampshire, Middleburg, Penn., who was picked up on the north side Thursday while attempting to beat her way on a Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul train.

Mrs. Hampshire, called by herself, "Spike", was dressed in a man's attire with her hair cut short. She was arraigned in county court Saturday morning and sentenced to thirty days in jail for contempt of court. She refused all information asked by the judge and disregarded any statement of the court.

Mrs. Hampshire appear to be in the neighborhood of twenty-two years of age. In a short conversation with a reporter at the city lockup Friday, "Spike" declared she had been on the road since she was fourteen years of age. Asked why she did not go home and behave herself, "Spike" declared that her "old man" was a copier like the rest of these low-down—adding that he would drive her to the pen as quick as anyone. It seemed impossible for the prisoner to speak without using an oath. In making the arrest, it required two police officers to hold her within check. She was declared to be the "hardest" woman it has been the experience of the police department to handle.

COMET WILL AGAIN BE SEEN IN SOUTH CLAIM ASTRONOMERS

HEIDELBERG.—Brilliant night bands, which took the form of a wreath running from west-northwest to east-southeast, were produced by the tail of a comet through which the earth passed last Monday night, astronomers at the Konigsstuhl observatory announced. These light bands gradually faded from view with the approach of dawn.

Observations taken at the university were said to have indicated that the head of the comet's tail moved from north to south. The astronomers predict the comet will again be visible to points in the southern hemisphere where conditions for observations are favorable at the present time.

Seek to Verify Authorship of Letter Found in Kolze Home Friday

Mrs. Kolze died 8 years ago and Kolze about three weeks ago. Mrs. Demmer was Kolze's house-keeper after the death of Demmer and Mrs. Kolze and was questioned in connection with the deaths.

PATROL WATERS OF HURON TO PREVENT LIQUOR SMUGGLING

Seek to Block Attempt to Flood U. S. With Liquor from Ontario

DETROIT.—Armed with rifles, a detachment of state police Saturday started patrolling the waters in the vicinity of Detroit with motor boats to guard against liquor smuggling from Canada.

The troopers, 75 in number arrived from Lansing last night and reported to Charles F. Campau, Detroit representative of the Michigan Public Safety Commission who has declared open war-fare on the liquor smugglers.

The arrival of the state police followed reports that efforts were being made to flood the United States with intoxicants from Canada as the result of the court ruling in Windsor that the Ontario temperance act does not forbid their export.

KENOSHA CITIZENS INDICTED BY THE DOZENS SATURDAY

KENOSHA, Wis.—Law violators of Kenosha county had their Waterloo Saturday. They are being indicted by the special grand jury by the dozens and are being hauled into court to be arraigned and given bail while feverish excitement reigns in the city.

The most sensational development of the clean-up was the indictment of former Chief of Police O'Hare on two counts charging him with tampering with grand jury witnesses. He was formerly indicted on several counts charging malfeasance in office.

Alderman Dan Wachs was arrested on a charge of selling liquor; Herbert Millager owner of the notorious central park resort is under arrest for selling liquor; Charles Murray, a leader of the Kenosha county vote, is held for bribery and sale of liquor and a score of other dealers are under arrest.

Five counts of bribery alleging money was paid to former County Supervisor Thomas Fleming for protection of slot-machine gambling, is included. The indictment of Charles Murray bars one of the most interesting angles of the probe.

NELSONS BLANKED IN SECOND GAME WITH GILKERSON CREW

VISITORS PLAY AIR TIGHT BALL IN FINAL GAME

Jackson Hurls Three Hit Game and Holds Locals Scoreless Friday, 4 to 0

ENTIRE SCORING OCCURS IN THE FOURTH FRAME

Moppy in Good Trim Pitches Tight Game

One big inning in which the Union Giants bunched two singles, a double and triple, gave the colored aggregation a second victory over the Nelson Clothing company ball club at Copeland park Friday night, 4 to 0.

It was apparent from the start that Jackson, visiting hurler, was in the mood for a shut out victory and his effectiveness with men on bases was evident. He held the locals to a no hit game until the seventh inning after which time they were allowed but three bingles. Jackson was credited with six strikeouts and in addition clouded for a three base hit in the fourth frame.

Moppy's work against the slugging team was consistent, fielding his position in excellent form in addition to holding the visitors to seven blows. Four of the seven hits chalked up by the colored aggregation were collected in the fourth frame when the hitting spurt of Gilkerson's men netted them the only four tallies of the game. The game was marked by air tight ball on both sides of the ball.

The story of the Nelson defeat is told in short in the fact that on only one occasion did a runner venture to rebase beyond second base. It took Frang to accomplish this in the eighth inning when he advanced to third after securing a double off Jackson.

A lead off man in the visitors' prosperous inning, Williams struck out. Jackson followed with a triple and scored on Poole's grounder to third. Poole was safe at first when the play was made for Jackson at home. Preston singled followed by a similar smash by Jones, scoring.

Poole, Jones on first base drew a peg out of Wais to second base, but with "heads up," Ducky returned the pill double time to catch Preston at home. Wilson received a walk and Lowe's double brought the total up to four runs. Coleman was out on an infield fly to Moppy. The inning marked the end of the scoring.

It was announced by the Nelson management that the Union Giants have been booked for two additional dates on August 25 and 26, Thursday and Friday twilight.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago firemen won the third and last game of a series here with the New York firemen, the score at the end of the eleven innings being six to four.

YANKEE DAVIS CUP TEAM OF PLAYERS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Tilden, Johnston, Williams, Watson and Washburn to Compose Defending Team

NEW YORK.—The American Davis cup defending team will consist of William T. Tilden II, William M. Johnston, E. Norris Williams II, and Watson M. Washburn, the United States Lawn Tennis association announced Friday night. The players were selected by unanimous decision of the Davis cup committee. Its choice was made known on the last day permitted by the cup regulations.

The challenge round will be played at Forest Hills, N. Y., September 2, 3 and 5. The selecting committee consisted of Robert R. Wrenn, George T. Adce, Deas C. Wright, Samuel Hardy and Harold H. Hackett.

Little Concern Over Tilden
"There was no question of Tilden and Johnston making the team," Samuel Hardy, captain of last year's Davis cup team, declared. "Tilden's condition upon his return from England caused considerable uneasiness, but he has been resting most of the time since the Rhode Island state championship and should be in good shape in September."

"Johnston is playing well and apparently is following his usual course. His season is timed so that he will reach his best form about September 1. With two singles players of such ability the committee's problem was to select the combination that would best support them in singles in case Tilden or Johnston should be incapacitated."

SPORT BRIEFS

NEW YORK.—Jim Barnes, American national open golf champion and Jock Hutchison winner of the British open championship will meet here in a 36 hole match on Labor day.

MILWAUKEE.—Dennis O'Keefe, Chicago welterweight boxer, easily outpointed Tommy Near, a local boy in ten rounds.

OKMULGEE, Okla.—"Red" Thomas, center fielder for the Henrietta Western Association club was sold to the Chicago Nationals. It was learned. He will not report until the end of the season.

BOSTON.—Dan Dowd of Boston scored a technical knockout over Ted Jamieson of Milwaukee when Jamieson quit in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round bout, saying he had hurt his left hand.

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality—and DEMAND it.

They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy—because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTY AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills. These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons.

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!

SHRINERS' SPECTACLE BRILLIANT

Photographed at Pioneer hall at commencement of ceremonial.

SHRINERS' FEZTIVITIES

TEXAS, Georgia, Oregon and Tennessee temples were represented in the various samples of fezzes that were seen on the streets, as well as the big delegations from And, Duluth, Osmon, Minneapolis, Zurich, St. Paul and Medina, Chicago, Eugene, Simon and Alce Temple at Savannah, Ga., while in the army, was spending most of his time hunting through the crowds for a mate to his fez which he had been informed was worn by a motor tourist who arrived Thursday evening.

The Ramadours, well-known La Crosse orchestra which was parading the streets emitting jazz from a decorated motor-truck, acquired a couple of new members during the morning, when two Tripoli members swarmed the truck and insisted on leading the music.

Friday night the red fez was already well in evidence. Hundreds of visiting Nobles were strolling about the business district, some of them singing and all sky-larking. One group was discovered surrounding a blushing girl on Fourth and Main, insisting that she join in their song before she was released.

From 24 to 51 years is the stretch of years covered by the 300 candidates for initiation into the shrine at the big ceremonial. The daddy of the bunch is Fred Eckhardt, Vircona, well-known business man and political worker. Mr. Eckhardt, despite his 81 years, was on the ground early Friday, full of enthusiasm and "pop." He is but a few years younger than the oldest Shriner in Wisconsin, and is believed to set a world record in years for a candidate. The youngest candidate is Carroll K. Brumard, of the Durand, Wis., State bank. He is 24, and according to C. J. Steer is the "baby" of the class. He was accompanied to La Crosse by his father, also a Shriner of long standing.

Ori J. Sorensen of La Crosse was chief shepherd of the candidates in the parade. Before it started Ori was issuing dark hints about what he was prepared to accomplish upon his regiment, and some of the neophytes seemed a trifle worried.

The Tripoli Band, of Milwaukee, took possession of the Masonic Temple early in the day, after a musical announcement of their arrival in a march through town as soon as the special trains docked. The Eau Claire band was headquarters at the Chamber of Commerce.

Registration cards and other supplies which the reception committee had provided ran out early in the morning and hasty re-printings had to be ordered. Registration began at 6 o'clock Friday evening and continued until 2 o'clock in the morning, beginning again at 6 o'clock Saturday morning. At 10 o'clock the Y. M. C. A. lobby where registration was under way was jammed tight. They were registering visitors at the rate of about 3 a minute at that hour, and the rate was increasing rather than falling off. Although the committee had had no time to make a count of cards they had used up 1,500 cards that had been printed at that time, even though the Twin City and other delegations had not arrived.

Among the visitors wearing the fez was Edgar Brunner, formerly of La Crosse but now a resident of Postville, Iowa. Mr. Brunner motored up with his wife. He is a noble of Tripoli Temple.

Charles C. Looney, who is assistant postmaster of La Crosse, and for this occasion a member of the hotel and transportation committee, was tired but happy when day dawned Saturday. He's been up all night meeting trains and bustling about hotel lobbies, with about forty winks snatched on a sofa in the postoffice all the sleep he could get. Charles figured he had until noon to go, and after that could relax and enjoy the party.

J. J. Smith, Galena, Ill., was one of the unexpected visitors who dropped in for the ceremonial. He came alone, but said that several other Galena Nobles were due during the day.

Police facilities being hopelessly swamped by the huge crowd arriving for the Shrine doings Chief Webber sent a call for help to the fire department on Friday. Chief McLaughlin called for volunteers, and twenty-eight responded. They were to be used to police the line of march of the parade and otherwise assist the police in maintaining order and preventing traffic jams.

The La Crosse Shrine club was happily surprised when a patrol of Tebala Temple, Rockford, Ill., arrived in a special Pullman early in the morning. Tebala had not been expected to put in an appearance, but came up some fifty strong in uniformed men, as well as with a number of Nobles who came for the ride.

With the ceremonial being staged on a larger scale than ever before the Tripoli ringmasters, heretofore all Milwaukeeans, have been forced to draft outsiders. Among those who donned the overalls to help out were Thomas Duncan Kemler, Madison auto dealer.

A movie camera caught one bunch of Tripoli Nobles out riding in a rickety wagon with an ancient bay horse in the shafts. The wagon was full of Nobles with horns and cowbells, and the melancholy steed was persuaded to keep going by a Noble on his back armed with a fish-pole, from the end of which he dangled a bunch of hay before the horse's nose. While the movie man was shooting the horse got tired and crossed his legs. He tried to lie down in the shafts but was supported by several compassionate Nobles.

With E. W. Parker of La Crosse as chief muleteer, a burro, all doled up in red and yellow pants, appeared on the street at noon. It was soon followed by a string of Nobles, who stopped all pretty girls and invited them to ride. Eventually a Milwaukee Noble got aboard. He attempted to ride Jenny into the Park store, but Jenny wouldn't. With eight Nobles all showing, Jenny simply backed the gang into the street. Fearing the donkey would be injured in traffic, Parker led the animal up on the sidewalk, followed by the increasing parade. The only sober countenance in the bunch belonged to Jenny.

Eau Claire Nobles and their ladies found themselves sitting pretty at the Normal school gym-ed building. More than 100 sets were placed in the various rooms for their sleeping quarters, and it was not long after their arrival that they discovered the swimming tank in the basement of the building. Permission was granted for them to use the tank, and Noble Bill Hurlton

WELCOME, SHRINERS

ON behalf of the citizens of La Crosse the Tribune and Leader-Press expresses a most cordial welcome to the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine who are gathered here for the Midsummer Ceremonial. We esteem it no inconsiderable honor to be privileged to entertain these thousands of good fellows, and we trust that our visitors will be able to enjoy themselves as much as we are enjoying their presence.

One needs no intimate acquaintance with the mysteries to appreciate the Shrine spirit. It has been demonstrated in a hundred good-natured incidents in La Crosse today; it has shone broadly from thousands of faces under the red fez. One does not need to be a Noble to recognize this spirit in all its abounding and infectious fun, its boyish abandon and carefree friendliness. It is the very essence of good-fellowship, quite evidently. And those who do not wear the fez appreciate it only less than those who have a part in its fraternity.

La Crosse is glad to have the opportunity of entertaining the Shrine. It is the first time that the privilege has been ours, but we hope that it will not be the last. For it is good to surrender to the spirit of frolic and play. It is a tonic and a stimulant, and the heaping draughts of it that have been ours during the ceremonial will render this a day to count time from in La Crosse.

It is a big day for us. And we hope that our visitors will feel at least a little of the warmth of welcome which this community has tried to express. In all sincerity, we are glad that they came, and our only regret is that they cannot stay indefinitely.

CEREMONIAL BIG SUCCESS SAYS POTENTATE ZARSE

Potentate Henry Zarse of Milwaukee, when asked about the success of the Ceremonial here, expressed himself as being simply delighted with the manner in which things have been done.

"The showing made by Mr. Sisson and his committee is wonderful," said Mr. Zarse. "It is all the more so because many more Nobles have arrived than were planned for and yet that has not disarranged things in the least."

"I want to congratulate all the committees on the work they have done," stated Mr. Zarse emphatically, "and assure them that they couldn't have done better."

PARADE IN AFTERNOON IS A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT DRILLS ARE IMPRESSIVE

Thousands Enjoy Big Public Event Which Features Afternoon Program on the Downtown Streets and in Riverside Park

CLIMAX was reached on the spectacular side of the Midsummer Ceremonial of the Mystic Shrine on Saturday afternoon in the parade in which more than 2,000 nobles escorted the class of some 250 candidates from Pioneer hall through the streets of the city to Riverside Park and then to the big tent, bands playing, banners flying and brilliant uniforms making a barbaric display. The final section of the initiation was to be given at the fair grounds, under the direction of the "Tripoli wrecking crew" of ringmasters, busy the last two days in assembling their three carloads of paraphernalia for the testing of the candidates.

The parade was nearly half an hour passing a given point, and almost every yard of it had some spectacle of special interest which evoked applause from the spectators. The patrols of Tripoli and Osman Temples, from Milwaukee and St. Paul respectively, enthroned the march with fantastic evolutions of all sorts, performed with extraordinary precision. There were Arab sheiks on horseback, magnificently costumed members of the Divans, drum and bugle corps, and clowns and other circus attributes.

The parade started promptly at three o'clock, standard time, from Pioneer Hall, with Colonel Frank H. Fowler, in the regulation dress suit and fez of the Shrine leading on horse back. He was followed by his aides, H. S. Burroughs, and C. W. Noble, similarly mounted, and these by a platoon of mounted police.

Tripoli Patrol Performs

After them came the hosts of the occasion, the La Crosse Shrine club, in fez and evening clothes. Behind them in a blaze of bizarre color, came the various officials of the Tripoli Divan in full Oriental regalia, a mass of red and green and yellow and blue. They rode in autos, decorated with the Shrine paraphernalia. The famous Tripoli patrol followed, weaving itself as it marched into stars, crescents, crosses, and other fancy formations, all without losing cadence or step, and in perfect unison in time to the stirring strains of the Tripoli band which followed on their heels, with William Horlek of Racine in gorgeous costume tossing the baton of drum major. After these came the Tripoli junior patrol, similarly attired to the costume of the senior patrol, and performing similar evolutions with scarcely less precision.

LOCAL SHRINE CLUB BREATHES RELIEF AS IT "GOES OVER"

Success of Midsummer Ceremonial Fruit of Two Months of Unremitting Labors

VERDICT OF VISITORS NOTHING IS FORGOTTEN

Unanimous in Praise of Smooth-running Machine of Hospitality

FROM the standpoint of the La Crosse Shrine club the biggest thing about the midsummer ceremonial, according to the views obtainable by reporters, was that the big job was about done. Preparations for the event have occupied practically every able-bodied Noble of La Crosse for the last two months in all its spare time, and in many instances in time that could not handily be spared.

But all of them on Saturday looked upon their work and accepted the verdict of the visiting Nobility and their townsmen that it was good.

The work was divided into ten separate sections for as many committees, all under the general direction of Frank Sisson, as president of the La Crosse Shrine club. Assisted by numerous meetings at which progress was noted and the work co-ordinated, the committees worked out their jobs, with the result that Saturday crowded the city with thousands of visiting Shriners, all of whom were fed, entertained and cared for in top-notch style. Praise of the Shrine club for its successful discharge of the big responsibility was one of the first comments made by every visiting Noble after he had encountered the smoothly running machine of hospitality which the La Crosse members had operating at full capacity since Thursday evening.

"They didn't even forget to put signs on the roads as we got into town telling us where to register and get in touch with the bunch," said an Eau Claire visitor. "La Crosse has given us the full work. I never saw a big affair like this better handled."

Sisson the Big Boss

No adequate idea can be given of the magnitude of the task which fell to Frank Sisson when he took charge of the biggest Shrine ceremonial ever held in the state outside of Milwaukee. It is the second one to be held outside Milwaukee, the one in Eau Claire last year being the first. Preparations for the big event were begun months ago and Mr. Sisson has required and answered thousands of letters besides making numerous trips about the state since that time. The work of transporting the Shrine from Milwaukee was done so smoothly that it seemed an easy matter, but it took hard work in advance and the executive ability

LA CROSSE STARTS A STRONG CAMPAIGN FOR SHRINE TEMPLE

Plan of Local Members of the Order Revealed as Ceremonial Comes to a Close

FLYING START GIVEN PLAN WITH NEW MEMBERSHIP HERE

La Crosse Favored When Time Comes for Second Temple

HOLDING of the mid-summer ceremonial of Tripoli temple in this city Saturday marked the commencement of a well organized and determined campaign to obtain a charter for a shrine temple in La Crosse.

Nobles of Tripoli temple residing in this city long have had in contemplation plans for the locating of a temple in La Crosse. Taking in of the large class of nobles here Saturday placed the local Shrine club with in reaching distance of the coveted prize and added impetus to the movement long cherished.

To obtain a charter for a temple in La Crosse, the local organization must have included within its membership 600 nobles. With the class taken in here Saturday the La Crosse Shrine club has a membership of over 300. Awarding of a territory to include a number of counties in western Wisconsin would assure the club enough additional members to make up the required quota.

In support of the movement to obtain a charter for a Shrine temple in this city, it is pointed out that Wisconsin is the only state in the United States having only one temple. South Dakota has three, Minnesota three, Iowa four, Illinois four and Indiana several.

After it Next Year

While President Frank W. Sisson of the La Crosse Shrine club would make no definite statement Saturday night regarding the plans of the local organization, it is understood that a movement has been started to take up with Tripoli temple the matter of endorsing the plan to the end that a petition for a charter for the La Crosse temple may be filed with the imperial council when it convenes in San Francisco next year.

This movement took on added importance when it was pointed out that consummation of the plan would speed up plans for the erection of a new Masonic temple here. This plan has been held in abeyance for some time.

Has Big Membership

Tripoli Temple has increased its enrollment to approximately 4,800. Nobles of the Mystic Shrine with the admission of the big La Crosse class at today's ceremonial session here. It thus ranks as one of the largest temples of the order, which has 157 temples scattered throughout the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Panama Canal zone, Hawaiian Islands and other American territories.

At the close of 1920, Tripoli Temple ranked twenty-fifth among all temples in membership. The ranking is now materially improved. In the last five years it has doubled its membership, due to the awakening of interest in the order of Wisconsin.

The membership is scattered all over the state of Wisconsin, and there are Shriners in virtually every community, large and small. Besides, Tripoli Nobles are to be found in nearly every foreign country, through removals and transfers of residence by members created in Wisconsin.

Twentieth Temple

Tripoli Temple was chartered, March 8, 1885, as the twentieth temple of the Order of the Mystic Shrine, then only about ten years old. Its jurisdiction embraces the entire state of Wisconsin. While most other states have from two to five temples within their boundaries, the statewide jurisdiction granted to Tripoli at its inception has remained undisturbed because of the wishes of its membership throughout the state as well as in Milwaukee.

Want Strong Temples

The imperial council intends to insure it that whenever a dispensation is granted to a group of Nobles in any community to form a new temple, that it is well-grounded and not likely to have a slow and stunted growth to the detriment of the order.

TRIPOLI DIVAN COMPOSED OF BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL STATE LEADERS

ROLL OF LEADERS RESEMBLES PAGE OF BADGER "WHO'S WHO"

Officers of Tripoli Temple in Oasis of Milwaukee Lead in Practical Affairs

FROM Potentate Henry F. Zarse down to the lowest ranking officer of Tripoli Temple, members of the Divan, as the official body of a Shrine is known, are all prominent in the business and professional life of Wisconsin.

Potentate Zarse is at the head of one of the largest wholesale and importing millinery houses in Milwaukee, which is a center of this industry. He is known far and wide in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Upper and Lower Michigan, the Dakotas, and other northwestern states, through which he makes periodical trips in the interests of his business.

EDGAR Baume, chief rabban, who will be potentate of Tripoli in 1922, is a thirty-third degree Mason and one of the best known workers in Scottish Rite Masonry in America. Years ago Mr. Baume was prominent as an actor but for about twelve years he has devoted his time to extensive real estate interests. He spends a great deal of time in the work of Wisconsin Consistory. He retired recently after serving three years as head of the Council of Princes of Jerusalem, one of the major bodies going to make up the Consistory. For six years he has had general charge of the staging of the degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second.

WILLIAM W. Storms of Racine, Wis., assistant rabban of Tripoli, is district attorney of Racine county, in which he has functioned for many years as one of the leading members of the bar. He is known both as a criminal lawyer and a pleader at the civil bar and has achieved wide renown as an orator.

ALBERT G. Braband, high priest and prophet, is at the head of the Braband-Voss Co., one of the leading houses in the printing craft in Milwaukee. He has a long and honorable record as a Masonic worker, being a past master of Wisconsin Lodge No. 23, and a past high priest of Wisconsin Commandery circles.

FRED H. Dornier, oriental guide, is a mechanical engineer of wide note, a graduate of the college of engineering of the University of Wisconsin, and at present representing several leading American manufacturers of power plant apparatus as sales engineer in Wisconsin and vicinity. He is a member of the Public Sewerage Commission of the city of Milwaukee, an honorary position with no salary. This commission is handling the mammoth project of providing the city of Milwaukee with a sewerage system adequate for fifty years ahead, when the city is expected to have 1,000,000 population or more. The work involves about $35,000,000. Mr. Dornier for ten years has served as secretary of the Milwaukee Engineering Society. He is an active member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Mr. Dornier served as chairman of the transportation committee for the La Crosse ceremonial as well as for the Chippewa Valley ceremonial a year ago.

WILLIAM George Thwaites, treasurer of Tripoli Temple, is a leading attorney of Milwaukee, who spends a great deal of time in fraternal work. He is grand treasurer of the Odd Fellows in Wisconsin and a trustee of Wisconsin Consistory. He is a past potentate of Tripoli and a past officer of various Masonic bodies. Besides being prominent at the bar, he is regarded as one of the shrewdest business men of Milwaukee and his counsel is constantly sought by public private and fraternal organizations in the larger affairs. He is a thirty-third degree Mason.

ADOLPH H. Wagner, recorder of Tripoli Temple, is a veteran business man of Milwaukee who now devotes all of his time to the business management of the Wisconsin Shrine. He is a thirty-third degree Mason and has held offices in all of the Masonic bodies, being a past grand eminent commander of Knights Templar in Wisconsin.

FRANK W. Sisson of La Crosse holds the appointive office of first ceremonial master in Tripoli's divan, of which he has been a member three years. He is one of the best known men in the Middle Western wholesale grocery trade and prominent in civic as well as commercial affairs of La Crosse and the state. As president of the La Crosse Shrine Club, which was formed largely through his instrumentation, he had charge of the tremendous task of staging the mid-summer ceremonial.

EDWARD A. Kieckhafer of Milwaukee, second ceremonial master of Tripoli Temple, is at the head of the Kieckhafer Mfg. Co., a leading manufacturer of tools, dies, jigs, fixtures and appliances for the metal working industry. He is past master of his lodge, past high priest of his chapter, and past master of its council and an ardent worker in the Knights Templar.

JAMES R. Leedom, illustrious marshal, is president of the firm of Leedom, Miller and Soyos, a big undertaking concern of Milwaukee. He is serving as president of the Milwaukee Board of Fire Underwriters. He has been active in Shrine affairs for many years, especially in the Arab Patrol, of which he is first lieutenant. He was chairman of the transportation committee for the pilgrimages of Tripoli to the imperial council session, or national conventions of the Order of the Mystic Shrine, both at Portland in 1920 and at Des Moines in 1921.

HARRY G. Bennett, ceremonial director, and "chief whip" of the Tripoli Rite Masters, is a prominent traveling salesman and for years has represented the Roundy, Deekham and Dexter Co., wholesale groceries, Milwaukee, in the northwestern territory. He is widely known in La Crosse and along the Mississippi. Despite his frequent and long absences from Milwaukee "on the road" for his house, Mr. Bennett has executed the big job of ceremonial director with conspicuous success for the last two years. Previously for ten years, he was assistant director.

GEORGE L. Waetjen, captain of the guard on the Tripoli Divan, is head of the Geo. L. Waetjen Co., Milwaukee, manufacturer and wholesaler of veneers and panels. He is active in the affairs of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce and widely known organization's annual trade extension excursions, as well as its work in developing Northern Wisconsin by settlement of outcrop lands. Mr. Waetjen also is a leader in Rotary Club work.

NORVILLE P. Barkdoll, outer guard of Tripoli Temple this year, is a prominent candy manufacturer, being head of the Barkdoll Candy Co., Milwaukee which he has built up into an imposing organization in a comparatively few years.

CAPT. R. Fred Whetter, commander of the Tripoli Arab Patrol, is not as many people think who see his corps perform, an ex-army officer, but a merchant tailor. He is head of the R. Fred Whetter Co., 412 Broadway, Milwaukee, which does some of the highest class custom work in the city. He has been a member of the Arab Patrol since its inception about thirteen years ago, served later as second and then as first lieutenant, and in 1916 was appointed captain, being reappointed each year since that time. He is recognized as one of the most capable and efficient drillmasters in North American Shrinism, and is especially noted for evolving the intricate evolutions through which he puts his drill team, whereas most other Shrine Patrol captains take their movements from manuals. This originality has done much to make the Tripoli Patrol one of the best and enabled it to earn first honors at Portland in 1920 and again at Des Moines in 1921, at the national Shrine conventions.

James R. Leedom, first lieutenant of the Patrol, is described in the foregoing as illustrious marshal on the Tripoli Divan.

HERMAN C. Pietsch, second lieutenant of the Patrol, is superintendent of mails of the Milwaukee Postoffice, a position equivalent to the general manager of a large commercial corporation. He has been in the postal service many years and has won nation-wide commendation for his work in putting the Milwaukee Postoffice into the top ranks of first class offices for efficiency and prompt public service.

CAPT. Fred W. Brunkhorst, director and bandmaster of Tripoli Temple Band, was for thirty years or longer director of orchestras in the leading theaters of Milwaukee, besides managing and conducting Brunkhorst's Band and managing other large musical enterprises and organizations. He gained his education under the European masters and is especially skilled as a violinist. Six years ago he was commissioned to form a Shrine Band for Tripoli and has been reappointed bandmaster regularly ever since. He has earned an international reputation for this band.

DR. Robert O. Brunkhorst, assistant director of Tripoli Band, is a prominent physician and surgeon of Milwaukee. He is the eldest son of Capt. Brunkhorst and likewise has earned wide note as a musician. He was chief musician of the University of Wisconsin band during his studies at Madison. His versatility as a musician has made him especially valuable to the Shrine band, to the interests of which

MASONIC HISTORY

Organization of the first Masonic lodge in La Crosse dates back to the year 1852, according to the records of the local organization.

The lodge Under a dispensation granted October 8, 1852, by the grand lodge of the state of Wisconsin, Frontier Lodge, No. 15, P. & A. M., held its first meeting October 22 of the same year in the dwelling house of Brother Ebenezer Childs. The building was located on the south side of Pearl street, on ground now occupied by the American House. The first worshipful master was Brother Morrison McMillan, and Brother C. A. Stevens acted as secretary. Only two or three meetings were held in the Childs residence, the lodge being moved from there to an old wooden building which was located on the south side of State street (on the present site of the Star Knitting Works), where it remained but a brief period.

The charter was issued June 16, 1853, and was signed by Henry L. Palmer, G. M.; Gabriel Boeck, C. S. W.; R. DeLoe, P. M.; G. J. W., Wm. R. Smith, G. secretary. The charter members were Brothers Morrison McMillan, Solomon Howe, Jacob Crosscut, J. Pisk, J. Danmoy, Ebenezer Childs, C. A. Stevens, William McCannell, John W. Howerton, D. M.

A dispensation was granted to a chapter of Royal Arch Masons located in La Crosse, Wisconsin, by the grand chapter of the state of Wisconsin, October 19, 1855. The first high priest was Companion Morrison McMillan and Companion Julius Smith was the secretary.

The charter was issued February 6, 1856, and the following mentioned companions were its charter members, namely: Morrison McMillan, Chase A. Stevens, William H. Tucker, Solomon Howe, Julius Smith, H. E. Hubbard, Chester McClure, J. Graves, A. B. Couch, P. P. Brooks, T. B. Stoddard, Richard H. McMan, Joshua Ridgely, J. M. Randall, Simon Kellogg, Daniel Malbon, Samuel D. Hastings, J. D. Condit, J. D. Dammann, John A. Walker, Theo. Radloff, J. M. Levy, A. H. Wilson, M. F. Hubbard, Cyrus K. Lord.

The new chapter was named Smith chapter, No. 13, R. A. M. Meetings were held in the quarters of Frontier lodge.

Crumbs From the Coal Wharves The coal wharves of London are haunted by a fleet of strange looking little craft propelled from point to point by man power and supplied with a tiny dredging apparatus with which the occupant of the boat recovers the pieces of coal which are dropped from the hulk and grabs with which it is transferred from the wharf to the large steamers. The product consists of a variety of coal and it is commercially known as "mixed coal." The men must be skilled to find these pieces in the mud, but they soon become very adept at it and the art is handed down from father to son.

Behind in Her Reading A traveling salesman found himself in a village hotel dining room when a heavy downpour of rain set in. "Dearie," he said, addressing the waitress, "it looks like the flood." "Like what?" the girl inquired. "Like the flood. You have read of the flood and how the ark landed in Mount Ararat, haven't you?" "No, sir," admitted the waitress. "I haven't seen a newspaper for three days."

LA CROSSE SECOND CITY OF STATE OUTSIDE MILWAUKEE TO BE GRANTED CEREMONIAL

EAU CLAIRE ONLY OTHER TOWN WHERE SHRINERS GATHERED

Cost of Big Doings Estimated at Close to $14,000—all of it Used in La Crosse

BY LEONARD E. MEYER
THE pilgrimage of Tripoli Temple to La Crosse on Saturday, August 13, marks the second time in the thirty-six years of the organization's existence in Wisconsin that an initiatory event, which in the language of the Shrine, is known as a "ceremonial session," has been held outside of Milwaukee. A year ago Tripoli Temple granted the request of the Nobles of the Chippewa Valley to stage an initiation, and it proved to be so successful in every way that such pilgrimages probably will be repeated every summer hereafter.

Numerous requests were made with in the past year by groups of Nobles in large communities of Wisconsin to be honored with what is now styled the "Midsummer Ceremonial." Out of all these requests, that of the La Crosse Shrine club was accepted, largely for the reason that President Frank W. Sisson and his associates were able to convince Potentate Henry F. Zarse and his Divan that La Crosse was well able to entertain such an event properly, and that those in charge of the arrangements were capable of handling it to the entire satisfaction of the temple.

Compliment to City
It is regarded as a high compliment to the city of La Crosse that it was thus selected. To entertain such a vast concourse of Nobles and their wives, and the many "camp followers" and other guests attracted by a Shrine initiation, is a huge task. That this has been accomplished to the utmost degree is unquestioned, now that it is all over and congratulations are being extended on all sides to President Sisson and his hard-working associates.

Up to a year ago, Tripoli Temple held only two ceremonial sessions each year, one in the spring and the other in the fall. These invariably were held in Milwaukee, and candidates who desired to receive the degree came from all parts of the state, while many more members traveled long distances to witness the interesting ceremonies.

In those days it was more essential than now for candidates to go to Milwaukee, for the Shrine degree was conferred following the sessions of Wisconsin Consistory, Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite Masons, Thirty-second Degree. For two and a half years the sessions of the Shrine have preceded the Consistory degree work, and candidates are able to take the Shrine degree from the Commandery, or Knights Templar order.

This opened the way for Tripoli Temple to make the important concession of going to the larger cities in the state to confer the degree in full form and in the same elaborate style as the work is done in Milwaukee twice each year. The courtesy is much appreciated by a great many Knights Templar who live at great distances from Milwaukee and do not feel that they can afford to devote the time and bear the expense of going to the metropolis of the state to receive the degree.

Thus "the mountain goes to Mahomet," to use an old expression. The pilgrimage to La Crosse, like that to Eau Claire last year, has been made expressly to meet the convenience of many Masons of the Knight Templar degree who have always desired to become Shriners but for one or more reasons involving time and expense could not go to Milwaukee.

Lots of Work
A pilgrimage such as this involves an enormous amount of hard work and a large expense. For months President Sisson and committee of the La Crosse Shrine club have been working diligently and sacrificing much time and expense to perfect arrangements. It is no secret that they have reached into their own pockets many times in order to do things the way they want of them done. It has been a sort of splan with the La Crosse Shrine club that this big event should not cost the people of La Crosse a penny, and no public, semi-public or even private subscription has been taken to finance any part of the cost save the voluntary contributions which members of the Shrine belonging to the La Crosse Shrine club might have made without ostentation "for the good of the cause."

It is stated that it will cost Tripoli Temple between $11,000 and $14,000 in staging the midsummer ceremonial, and virtually all of this money has been expended in La Crosse. At least so far as possible, contracts and purchases have been made from La Crosse industries, business men and others. It would be difficult, of course, to attempt to estimate the large amount of money which is left in La Crosse during the day of the event by the thousands who come to the city to participate in the occasion or witness it.

While the La Crosse Shrine club officers and committees have been busy for months, officials and members of Tripoli Temple at the headquarters in Milwaukee have also been putting in many hours of work to prepare for the occasion. It takes more than 300 members of Tripoli to stage a ceremonial session in full form. Besides the Divan, which consists of the illustrious Potentate and the elective and appointive officers of the temple, the Tripoli Ringmasters, the Tripoli band, the Tripoli Arab Patrol, the Auxiliary Patrol, the Patrol Quartet, and other units or working bodies have been kept busy.

The Ringmasters and Aides
The Tripoli Ringmasters are an organized group of members who attend to the work of staging the initiatory ceremonies proper. At their head is the Ceremonial Director, Harry G. Bennett of Wauwatosa, Wis. He is assisted by from forty to fifty experienced members who handle all paraphernalia, look after the candidates, put on "stunts," and do a thousand and one other services. And when it is all over, the Ringmasters are the men who tear down what they built up for a single day, pack the trunks, the scenery, the trappings and all other freight and baggage which goes to make the setting for the initiation, all of which requires a vast amount of properties and makes the Ringmasters' work like that of a circus crew.

Then there is the Temple Band of sixty pieces, which rehearses once or twice each week to keep in the pink of condition for Shrine affairs at home and abroad. It is under the direction of Captain Fred W. Brunkhorst, who for more than thirty years has been one of the most prominent musicians, orchestra and band leaders in Milwaukee, and for the past six years has devoted his time without pay to training and directing the Shrine band. Captain Brunkhorst otherwise is the owner of a large downtown public garage. He has surrounded himself with a galaxy of high-class musicians, every one of whom is a Shriner. Only a few of these are men who make their living as musicians, the majority of members being business and professional men of Milwaukee and other sections of Wisconsin who likewise play with the Shrine band for the joy of doing it.

At the recent national Shrine convention in Des Moines, Iowa, and at last year's convention in Portland, Ore., the Tripoli Shrine band was hailed as one of the finest and highest class musical organizations among more than seventy-five bands sent by as many Shrine temples to participate in parades, concerts, etc. The band which was sent to Des Moines by Tripoli Temple has been augmented for its appearance at La Crosse.

Horton Kline a Member
One of the members of this band is Horton Kline, of the faculty of the La Crosse High school, who plays the clarinet. Mr. Kline accompanied the band to Portland and Des Moines.

Besides the Divan, Ringmasters and band, there are nearly 100 other members who work hard and take a most important part in both the public and private work of the Shrine. They comprise the Tripoli Arab Patrol and the Auxiliary Patrol. The Arab Patrol is sent to all national conventions to participate in parades, exhibition drills, etc. It is commanded by Captain R. Fred Whetter, who has been a member since its inception thirteen years ago, and its captain for the last five years. It consists of forty men and is not only one of the largest but one of the best-drilled patrols in all Shrinedom, winning high honors at Portland as well as Des Moines. The Auxiliary Patrol was formed about eighteen months ago out of a large waiting list of members desirous of earning places in the so-called "vehicular" patrol. It soon became a well-fledged drill team with its own identity, but still remains the "farm" from which the Arab Patrol draws new members as old members drop out or are replaced. The Auxiliary Patrol is commanded by Anthony Van Pietersom and has thirty-three members.

Have Three Uniforms
The band and Arab Patrol and its auxiliary each have three complete sets of uniforms. All will be attired in the regulation Zouave costume in which Shrine bands and patrols usually appear. When off duty the men bers wear a handsome white military uniform with gold trimmings, and for special occasions there is a third uniform of another kind.

The list of those who do hard work in preparation for a big ceremonial session embraces also a hundred or more members of the Shrine who are chairmen or members of committees. Potentate Zarse has appointed numerous special committees to supplement the stated or regular permanent committees in their work for extraordinary events such as the La Crosse ceremonial. One of the most active of the regular committees is the publicity committee, which in co-operation with Chairman William F. Hurler of the publicity committee of the La Crosse Shrine club, has covered the entire state and neighboring states with news concerning the midsummer ceremonial. Another is the transportation committee, of which Fred H. Dörner of Milwaukee is chairman. This body looked after the multitudinous details of arranging for the several special trains which carried the delegation of Shriners and their wives and children from Milwaukee and other eastern Wisconsin points across the state "from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi."

The officers and committees working out of the "base" at Milwaukee headquarters of Tripoli acknowledge a large debt to the officers and committee workers of the La Crosse Shrine club, and to the ladies' general committee as well, for their tremendous efforts to make the midsummer ceremonial the great success it has proved to be. Those who worked on the ground at La Crosse deserve unstinted words of credit and appreciation for their self-sacrificing efforts, which have given the city of La Crosse more than a state-wide reputation as a splendid host and a community capable of doing the biggest things in a great, big way.

City Bright In Shrine Colors For Ceremonial

LA CROSSE was all dressed up for the midsummer ceremonial of Tripoli temple. The red, green and yellow of the Shrine, combined with the national colors, were prominently displayed on every business building in the downtown district and on a large fraction of the private dwellings. In last year's convention in Portland, Ore., the Tripoli Shrine band was hailed as one of the finest and highest class musical organizations among more than seventy-five bands sent by as many Shrine temples to participate in parades, concerts, etc. The band which was sent to Des Moines by Tripoli Temple has been augmented for its appearance at La Crosse.

Huge camels stood over the entrances of the Doerflinger store, adding to the effect of the elaborate festooning of the building with the Shrine colors and the tri-color. The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company had posed a miniature desert scene in its window, with a string of camels filing across the sand against a background of Shrine colors. The Linker Electric company devoted one of its windows to a great Tripoli emblem, worked out with red, green and yellow electric lights.

A notable display was that of E. W. Parker, jeweler, who had used one of his windows for a complete desert scene. A mosque with Tripoli banners flying, the pyramids, a sphinx and camels were all in the scene, with an oasis inhabited by a couple in full Shrine uniform.

The Elite candy store had a window featuring a giant camel emblem of the Tripoli temple, and other Shrine symbols worked out in sweets. Camels were everywhere, as were keopie dolls in Shrine regalia and all sorts of Shriner emblems.

One striking window was that of the Dairy Lunch, worked out in red, green and yellow fruit with a watermelon, carved into a face, befezzed as the center of attraction.

ONLY THIRTY-SECOND DEGREE MASONS OR KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ELIGIBLE AS SHRINE MEMBERS

WORK IS SERIOUS BUT CLOTHED WITH LOTS OF CLEAN FUN

Organization of Arabic Origin Counts Many Prominent Men in its Number

BY LEONARD E. MEYER
WHO ARE the Mystic Shriners—the men who invaded La Crosse Saturday and made it ring with cheers and laughter?

They are all Masons of high degree, who have "traveled" upward from the Blue Lodge to the rank of Knights Templar in the York Rite, or to the thirty-second degree in the Scottish Rite.

The York Rite consists of the Blue Lodge, wherein a man becomes a Master Mason; then the Chapter, wherein a Master Mason is made a Royal Arch Mason, and then the Commandery, wherein a Royal Arch Mason is made a Knight Templar.

The Scottish Rite consists of united bodies which confer the degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second. A Scottish Rite group is known as a Consistory. In Wisconsin there is but one Consistory, and it is composed of membership only Masons who have reached the rank of Knight Templar. In some other state a man may receive the Consistory degrees direct from the Blue Lodge, or, in other words, he is eligible to take the fourth to thirty-second degrees after he has been made a Master Mason.

Shrine Meeting Ground
The Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine was organized as a common meeting ground for men who passed upward either through the York Rite to the rank of Knights Templar, or through the Scottish Rite to the thirty-second degree. It is frequently called "The Playground of Masonry," but more aptly should be described as "The Playground of Shriners," for the Mystic Shrine does not pretend to be a Masonic body, although its membership is open only to Masons, and then only when they have attained the highest degrees.

The work of the Masonic lodges is serious; that of the Shrine is serious as well, but clothed mostly in an aspect that produces wholesome, clean fun. The Shrine teaches a Mason how to really enjoy life without prejudice to principle, ethics, morality or other virtue.

The Order of the Mystic Shrine is of Arabic origin, and this theme is carried out in all of its ritualism and work as well as in the garb of the officers, members and working corps. The fez seen on thousands in La Crosse is of distinctly Arabic origin and it is the official head-dress of a Mystic Shriner. The oriental splendor of the Shrine was adopted first by the order but has since been copied by numerous other fraternal organizations and is sometimes confused with them.

A member of the Mystic Shrine is called a "Noble." What is commonly known as a "Shrine" is properly styled a "Temple." Thus many who call it "Tripoli Shrine" should say, "Tripoli Temple of the Mystic Shrine." The headquarters of a temple is known as a "Mosque," after the designation of an Arabic temple of worship. The jurisdiction of a temple is called a "Desert," and the seat of the temple is known as an "Oasis." So Wisconsin Shriners speak of "Tripoli Temple in the Oasis of Milwaukee, Desert of Wisconsin." The official garb of a Noble is the dress suit and the fez. Except on state occasions, the dress suit gives place to the business suit, but the fez is always worn to set off a Noble from the outsider. Bands and patrols usually are garbed in a Zouave costume, a relic of the Arabic age, which makes a most picturesque and inspiring sight.

Harding a Noble
The Order of the Mystic Shrine has a membership of more than 500,000 Nobles, and the roster contains the names of leading men everywhere. The roster of Tripoli Temple itself might well be called the "Who's Who" of Wisconsin. The president of the United States, Warren G. Harding, is a Noble, belonging to Aladdin Temple, Columbus, O. He is the first Shriner to become president of this republic, although nearly every president before him was a Master Mason. Theodore Roosevelt became a Noble after he retired from office. President Harding's secretary, George B. Christian, Jr., is a fellow-member of Aladdin Temple. A majority of members of the president's cabinet are Shriners. Edward J. Henning, assistant secretary of commerce and labor, is a member of Tripoli Temple. Secretary Davis, his immediate superior, is a Noble of Myria Temple at Pittsburgh.

Six out of nine governors of Wisconsin since Tripoli was chartered in 1885 were members of the Temple, as follows: William Dampster Hoard, George W. Peck, Robert M. La Follette, James O. Davidson, Francis H. McGovern and Emmanuel L. Philipp. Tripoli Temple has the distinction of having a membership composed almost entirely of men who have passed through the York Rite through the Christian order of Knights Templar. It is estimated that 96 per cent of Tripoli Nobles are Knights Templar. Nearly all Sir Knights who became Shriners later passed through the Consistory to the thirty-second degree. About 4,350 out of the 4,800 Nobles of the Wisconsin temple are both Knights Templar and thirty-second degree Masons, a record that is unique in the annals of North American Shrinedom.

In Large Activities
Tripoli is distinguished also by the large number of activities which have been undertaken by its members under the sponsorship of the organization. For instance, within the past year there has been formed a Tripoli Country club, membership in which is limited exclusively to Nobles of Tripoli in good standing, which is now building one of the finest golf courses in the United States on a 169-acre tract north of Milwaukee, owned by the club. The investment will be about $250,000. There will be only 300 active members and 100 non-resident members.

Later auxiliary membership classes may be formed to accommodate Nobles and their families who do not play golf. The active or resident memberships cost $40 each, and the non-resident memberships, $100 each. Only 200 resident memberships have been sold, pending the completion of the club, when the remaining 100 will be offered. There were nearly 350 applications for the first 200 active memberships at $40, which were sold within two weeks. It is expected that the 100 additional memberships will sell anywhere from $500 to $600 and that eventually a resident membership will be valued at $1,000.

The expense is borne entirely by the members of the Tripoli Country club, and the temple has not made nor will it make any investment whatsoever, merely permitting the club to bear the name "Tripoli" because it is limited to its own Nobles.

There was formed two years ago a Tripoli Motor club, open to all Nobles of Tripoli in Wisconsin and elsewhere. It now has nearly 1,000 members, who pay $2 a year for the privilege of

Plan Own Mosque
Perhaps the biggest project which Tripoli Temple has in mind on its own account at present is the erection of a mosque, or home of its own. Since organization it has always leased its headquarters. The office of the Recorder, as well as the Shrine parlors, are now located in the Scottish Rite Cathedral or Consistory building at Milwaukee. But within two or three years it is believed a magnificent building will be erected.

For three years a building committee has been at work. Nothing definite has been made public, because of the desire to avoid stimulating land values and because the time has not been deemed proper to undertake building due to abnormal costs. It is planned, however, to situate the new mosque in the heart of the city and to invest about $250,000 in building and site.

When ceremonial sessions are held in Milwaukee, the ritualistic work is conducted in the assembly hall of the Scottish Rite Cathedral, while the initiation proper takes place in the main arena of the Milwaukee Auditorium. This is done because the Cathedral hall will not accommodate the immense crowds which always attend. For the same reason, it was necessary for the La Crosse Shrine club to provide a huge circus tent for today's event. Pioneer hall was large enough only for the ritualistic section of the work and there is no other building in La Crosse that would accommodate the second or ceremonial session, so it was held at the Interstate fair grounds, under canvas.

Members of the Shrine club hope this striking illustration will impress all citizens of La Crosse that the city needs a large auditorium for conventions and other gatherings attracting large crowds.

The Walrus

Time has come the Walrus said
To talk of many things
Of shoes and ships and sealing wax
Of cabbages and kings.

(By C. A. W.)

I haven't been across the hot sands of the desert, held onto the rope, or submitted to any of the modern tortures of the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, but nevertheless have enjoyed as many thrills and as much side-splitting comedy as if given eight or ten degrees in a secret order—all from just standing around the side-lines watching the evolutions and antics of the nobles who took possession of La Crosse yesterday and gave the old burgh an entertainment which citizens unite in pronouncing the best ever, and which will not be forgotten here in many a day. And as "I lay me down to sleep" on the stroke of three bells, after seeing the fourth edition of this family journal come from the press within twelve hours, there passes in review before me the kaleidoscopic array of fox-topped nobles and in brilliant-hued garments, hanging onto a rope which seems to have wonderful magnetic qualities, for the whole town is trailing on behind, gazing with wondering and admiring eyes at the procession in gorgeous raincoat. In the distance one sees a glimpse of the oasis toward which the caravan is traveling, and as the procession reaches the banks of the Father of Waters and the rainbow disappears from view, I heave a sigh of relief, thank the fates that brought Tripoli temple to La Crosse for its mid-summer ceremonial and turn over for a real sleep. Are you with me, nobles? If you are, hang onto the rope, for we are going on a long journey and there'll be no breakfast or luncheon for us today.

Upon learning that our fellow townsman, Alfred Harrison, had purchased an ideal site and home on the banks of the Mississippi at Trempealeau, for his summer residence, Ben W. Davis of Galesville sent him a brochure, consisting of 40 pages, written by the Rev. D. O. Van Slyke of Galesville in 1886, entitled, "Bourgeois AT LAST: The veritable Garden of Eden, or a place that answers the Bible description of that notable spot better than anything yet discovered." The writer starts out with a quotation from Genesis 2:8-14, "And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden. . . . And a river went out of Eden to water the garden. And from thence it was parted and became into four heads. . . . And the fourth river is Euphrates," which means long river, symbol of greatness and importance, and which answers to our "Father of Waters." The rivers he mentions are the Mississippi, La Crosse, Black, and Trempealeau rivers and he claims the vast valley plain between La Crosse and Winona is the Garden of Eden, and the hanging garden (Galesville) was full of snakes, descendants of the original which tempted Eve. It is a very quaint and interesting pamphlet, full of data as to the productivity of the soil and other matters, pertaining to the fauna and geological formation and has many theories which tend to support the view. Mr. Harrison's summer home is situated on one of the most picturesque spots on the Wisconsin side of the Mississippi river, command's a beautiful view of the Mississippi river, Minnesota bluffs and Pickwick Valley, and is within two blocks of the Perrot State Park consisting of 590 acres donated by Mr. Latsch of Winona to the state of Wisconsin.

The long awaited revival in business may begin with the consummation of President Harding's plan to pay the railroads $500,000,000 which the government owes them, according to President George W. Burton of the National Bank of La Crosse. "Any encouraging development may turn the tide at this time," said Mr. Burton. "The most hopeful sign on the business horizon is President Harding's proposal to pay off the railroads. This half billion dollars would enable the railroads to pay their debts, order equipment and prepare for increased business. The tremendous purchasing power involved in this payment would result in increasing the output of the steel mills of the country, and with this basic industry on the upturn other lines of business would fall in line and also reopen."

While the output of La Crosse manufacturing plants is still being curtailed, encouraging signs are noted in clothing and knitting lines and allied industries. Mr. Burton said. Discussing business conditions in general here, he declared that the prosperity of this section of the country is reflected in the splendid retail trade enjoyed by La Crosse merchants and in the volume of bank deposits. "Reservoirs of La Crosse banks enable the banks," said Mr. Burton, "to take care of all local demands for money without assistance from the federal reserve bank, and also to buy considerable commercial paper, a so-curity easily liquidated if a demand for more money arises. The large savings deposits in local banks make the La Crosse business situation secure and comfortable at a time when other communities are feeling the stress of scarce money."

Charley Van Auker tells me the La Crosse Interstate fair has never been so well advertised as this year. Advance agents have placarded practically the entire country between Austin, Minn., and Portage, Wis., traveling southward into Crawford and Richland counties and north into the Dan Claire and Alma district. Letters of inquiry received at the secretary's office indicate that the organization of the boys' and girls' department at the fair has called conspicuous attention to the fair in many new quarters and is bound to give increased attendance, and an added attraction of exceptional merit. An indication of the interest displayed in the boys' and girls' calf and pig club contests is revealed when one learns that Mr. Van Auker is now in correspondence with 29 county agents in three states.

TIRE KING'S FOR ROUGHING IT

AKRON, Ohio.—Harvey S. Firestone, tire king, knows how Frankenstein felt when his mechanical man went on a rampage. Firestone organized a little camping trip so he, Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison could get close to nature. And he organized it so well that it became a camp de luxe. With the president of the United States as a guest.

"Why, I felt like a maître d'hôtel,"

Firestone exclaimed, as he returned to Akron. "Just to play safe we took 50 coats—and one night 40 coats were in use. On our record day in camp we fed 90!"

"The simple life! Why, I worked harder looking after coats and tents and food than I ever did making tires."

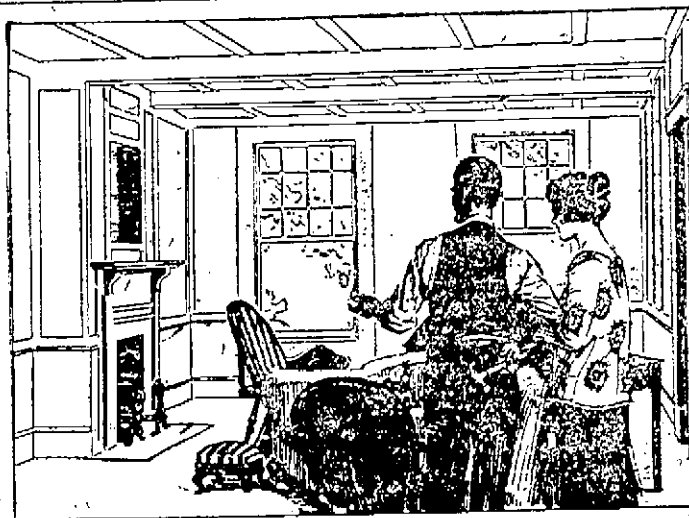

Too Many Comforts
"The thing got bigger every time I turned around. I was so anxious to make everyone comfortable that I wound up by having too many comforts."

Fifteen were in camp while President Harding and Secretary Christian were along, including five members of the Firestone family, four of the Ford family, Mr. and Mrs. Edison, Bishop W. F. Anderson and his wife. There were secret service men, photographers, movie men, cooks, tent handlers, chauffeurs and hostlers.

"Things went like clockwork," said Firestone. "I like things that way—even in camp. But I prefer to rough it. Getting back to nature—the real thing—is the best vacation."

Once Roughed It
"We really roughed it when our camping trips first started. Edison proposed the first trip. He and I went together. It was a new stunt for me. I was so soft I nearly died from the cold that first night. We were in the White Mountains. "We really got close to nature. Later, Henry Ford and John Bur-

INVESTIGATORS AT EVANSTON TO SEEK MOTIVE FOR SLAYING

Probe Former Relations of Kennedy, Burch and Mrs. Obenchain in Illinois City

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—A navy diving crew, at the request of Sheriff Traeger of Los Angeles, has been ordered to aid in the ocean-side search for the missing barrel of a shotgun the rusty stock of which has been turned over to District Attorney Woolwine by a beach camper near Santa Monica Canyon mouth in the belief that it is part of the weapon used in the slaying of J. Belmont Kennedy, the broker. Kennedy was shot near his summer cottage in Beverly Glen, eight miles inland, August 5.

Mrs. Obenchain Friday denied that she was withholding anything from the police. She said that the only version of the shooting she knew she had told, and that she was shielding no one.

District Attorney Woolwine said that he believed all the essential proofs were now at hand but establishing of a definite motive for the shooting would strengthen the case materially. To aid in this phase of the case an inquiry into the former relations of Kennedy, Burch, Mrs. Obenchain and possibly other persons at Evanston, Ill., and points in the mid-west was authorized.

BRINGING UP FATHER

FIND EVIDENCE OF ANOTHER BODY IN GRAVE OF PRIEST

New Evidence Incriminating Hightower Uncovered in Sand by Sheriff

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Constable S. A. Landini of Colma, on his return to San Francisco early Saturday from Saldaña beach on the Pacific ocean, south of here, announced his belief that another body is buried in the immediate vicinity of where the remains of Father Patrick E. Heslin, murdered Catholic priest, were exhumed last Wednesday night. This, with the unearthing of further evidence against William A. Hightower, held in connection with the death of Father Heslin, were the outstanding developments looking to the solution of the mystery.

Constable Landini said that late Friday night he and others dug in the sand near the priest's grave but were forced to abandon the search because of a coming fog. He stated the search would be continued when the fog lifted. A strong stench, probably that of a decomposing body, rose from the spot where the digging was carried on, he declared.

The new evidence against Hightower is in the form of tent pegs, zinc rope, cinch blocks and other articles dug up in the sand around the grave of Father Heslin. These tent accessories, according to the police, fit a small tent removed by them from the hotel room of Hightower who led the authorities to the priest's body for the announced intention of securing the $6,500 reward offered for its recovery.

The tent pegs and cinch blocks were removed from a sand ledge directly above the priest's grave to which Hightower led authorities last Wednesday night.

Digging at the grave also revealed additional papers and currency belonging to the priest. They included a California state hunting license, an automobile license, bank receipts and a five and ten dollar bill. Some of the papers and both bills had been pierced by bullets.

While these new developments were reported, plans were complete for the funeral of Father Heslin from St. Mary's Cathedral here Saturday. Friday night the body lay in the Cathedral and a service for the dead, attended by hundreds, was held.

LEAGUE COUNCIL TO DISCUSS SILESIA AT MEETING AUGUST 20

President Ishii Expected Soon to Issue Call for Special Session

PARIS.—By The Associated Press. Viscount Ishii, president of the council of the league of nations, is understood to have decided to summon that body to meet on August 20 for the purpose of considering a solution of the Upper Silesian problems. In agreeing to submit the Silesian question to the council of the league Premier Briand is asserted to have waived the rule providing that decisions of the council must be unanimous and the impression is that he will accept the verdict of a majority of the council. Enthusiastic dissatisfaction with the decision of the supreme council to call on the league of nations to settle the Silesian question was generally expressed by the press here today.

BET HE LOST HIS JOB AFTER THIS WAS MADE PUBLIC

CHICAGO, Ill.—Mrs. Lillian Lebel, granted a divorce Saturday from Anthony Lebel, employee of a gasoline filling station will receive $75 a month alimony because, she said, her husband makes $200 a month extra by cheating motorists. "How can you expect your husband to pay $75 a month alimony when his salary is only $105 a month?" the judge asked. "On he makes about $200 a month extra," she answered. "Motorists pay for the amount of gasoline they order not for the amount the filler puts into their tanks. In this difference is where my husband makes his extra money."

WOMAN IS GIVEN 30 DAYS FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT SATURDAY

Mrs. Fred Hampshire, Known as "Spike", Arrested on North Side Thursday Evening

One of the most vulgar woman characters it has been the experience of the local police department to handle is the case of a woman giving her name as Mrs. Fred Hampshire, Middleburg, Penn., who was picked up on the north side Thursday while attempting to beat her way on a Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul train. "Spike," as she is called by herself, was dressed in a man's attire with her hair cut short. She was arraigned in county court Saturday morning and sentenced to thirty days in jail for contempt of court. She refused all information asked by the judge and disregarded any statement of the court.

Mrs. Hampshire appear to be in the neighborhood of twenty-two years of age. In a short conversation with a reporter at the city lockup Friday, "Spike" declared she had been on the road since she was fourteen years of age. Asked why she did not go home and behave herself, "Spike" declared that her "old man" was a copper like the rest of these low downers, adding that he would drive her to the pen as quick as anyone. It seemed impossible for the prisoner to speak without using an oath. In making the arrest, it required two police officers to hold her within check. She was declared to be the "hardest" woman it has been the experience of the police department to handle.

COMET WILL AGAIN BE SEEN IN SOUTH CLAIM ASTRONOMERS

HEIDELBERG.—Brilliant light bands, which took the form of a wreath running from west-northwest to east-southeast, were produced by the tail of a comet through which the earth passed last Monday night, astronomers at the Koenigsstuhl observatory announced. These light bands gradually faded from view with the approach of dawn. Observations taken at the university were said to have indicated that the head of the comet's tail moved from north to south. The astronomers predict the comet will again be visible to points in the southern hemisphere where conditions for observations are favorable at the present time.

PATROL WATERS OF HURON TO PREVENT LIQUOR SMUGGLING

Seek to Block Attempt to Flood U. S. With Liquor from Ontario

DETROIT.—Armed with rifles, a detachment of state police Saturday started patrolling the waters in the vicinity of Detroit with motor boats to guard against liquor smuggling from Canada.

The troopers, 75 in-number arrived from Lansing last night and reported to Charles F. Campau, Detroit representative of the Michigan Police Safety Commission who has declared open war-fare on the liquor smugglers.

The arrival of the state police followed reports that efforts were being made to flood the United States with intoxicants from Canada as the result of the court ruling in Windsor, that the Ontario temperance act does not forbid their export.

KENOSHA CITIZENS INDICTED BY THE DOZENS SATURDAY

KENOSHA, Wis.—Law violators of Kenosha county had their Waterloo Saturday. They are being indicted by the special grand jury by the dozens and are being hauled into court to be arraigned and give bail while feverish excitement reigns in the city. The most sensational development of the clean-up was the re-indictment of former Chief of Police O'Hare on two counts charging him with tampering with grand jury witnesses. He was formerly indicted on several counts charging malfeasance in office. Alderman Dan Welch was arrested on a charge of selling liquor. Herbert Millager owner of the notorious central park resort is under arrest for selling liquor. Charles Murray, a leader of the Kenosha county wets, is held for bribery and sale of liquor and a score of other dealers are under arrest.

Five counts of bribery alleging money was paid to former County Supervisor Thomas Fleming for protection of slot-machine gambling, is included. The indictment of Charles Murray bares one of the most interesting angles of the probe.

Odd Fellows Plan Outing at Silverdale—Their Activities in City

SPARTA, Wis.—(Special)—Sparta is to have a Delphian chapter. This is a club organized for the interest of higher education, personal improvement and social progress, and is much the same in a community as the Kiwanis club or the Rotary club for men. Meetings will be held twice a month in some public place. Mrs. Elizabeth Powell, divisional director, and Miss Ethel Folwell, field secretary, are the representatives in the city. Sparta women will doubtless take the matter up in a way to assure its marked success.

A large delegation from Sparta Kiwanis club journeyed to Whitehall Wednesday to participate in the second Whitehall picnic in which the clubs from La Crosse, Winona, Eau Claire, Chippewa and Sparta took place. Secretary Allen Wash made the plans for the local club. The first car left the Sidney hotel about eight thirty o'clock and the others followed at two minute intervals.

The cars proceeded up North Court street and West Bear Creek to Melrose and from there to Ketchikan, where they took trail 11 into Whitehall, going by way of Blair.

Because of the picnic the regular weekly meeting of the club was given up.

Odd Fellows' Outing

Sparta Odd Fellows and their families will have a gala day on August 17 when they will go to Silverdale for the afternoon and evening. The committee in charge of the arrangements is J. T. Willbrugs, F. A. Steele, George Johnson, Louis Lesby, and Paul Austin. They are planning a ball game between the old members and young members—S. C. Lesson acting as umpire. Tom Longwell will be captain of the old members and Harry Roberts, captain of the younger set.

There will be a program which will be worth going a long way to hear. There will be horse shoe pitching, swimming and everything to make a jolly good time for all. Every Odd Fellow is urged to be present and bring his family.

Doris Brenner Weds

Word has been received in the city of the marriage of Miss Doris Brenner, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Levi A. Brenner, to Rev. George E. Stickney, which took place at the home of the bride's parents in Chippewa Falls. The bride is well known in Sparta, where her father was pastor of the First M. E. church for a number of years, and the family retained their residence here during the years that Mr. Brenner served as district superintendent of this district. She is an accomplished musician, being a graduate of the musical conservatory at Lawrence college. Mr. and Mrs. Stickney will be at home at Jacksonville, Ill., after the first of September whither the good wishes of their many friends in Sparta will follow them.

Rev. E. E. Horth delivered the charming address at the Camp Claghorn assembly, Chain of Lakes, Wisconsin, August 7. His subject was "The Man Four Square." In his absence the local pulpit was supplied by Mr. G. A. Briggs of Baraboo.

Teachers Meet

The Monroe County Teachers' institute held in the city the past week was a great success. The following were the instructors: President Hyer, Whitewater Normal; Principal Rush, Tonah; supervising teacher, Catherine Betthaus; Superintendent F. C. Bray, Fort Atkinson and County Superintendent Harriet Hutson, Miss Lucille Horth had charge of the music. Among some of the speakers who appeared on the program were the county nurse, the local nurse, state supervisor of nurses, Miss Nellie Van Koy, and President Hyer. The enrollment was in the neighborhood of one hundred and fifty.

Miss Bernadette Corry, who has recently returned home from Honolulu where she has been teaching, has been a guest of Sparta friends.

The Royal Neighbors' Sewing Circle had a picnic on the lawn at the Chris Axelsson home Friday.

About forty relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Willgrubs and enjoyed a good picnic dinner and a fine social time.

The ice cream social given on the lawn at the Richards farm home in Little Falls for the benefit of the Cataraugus M. E. church was a great success. Everyone present had a good time and a neat sum was realized for the church fund.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Big Creek community had a picnic at the home of Mrs. Will Hedron. More than $17 was realized from the support.

The Evangelical Ladies' Aid society met at the home of Mrs. Fred Stark on Thursday. Supper was served to which the public were invited.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the John W. Lynn post held their regular meeting in the W. C. T. U. hall.

STORIES OF GAME HUNTS AND OF TAME BEARS ARE TOLD BY N. C. BACHELLER

THE "HOLDUP BEAR" STILL AT WORK IN YELLOWSTONE PARK

Exciting Experiences With Grizzlies and Cubs in Old Days Also Described

BY N. C. BACHELLER
All through the Yellowstone National Park in all the camping places and elsewhere are posted signs which read exactly as follows:

"Feeding Bear Is Positively Prohibited."

I suppose this "great and good" and "best government on earth" is troubled in its mind for fear that its "bear" will become rotting wrecks of indigestion and dyspepsia through eating the grub carried by the tourists, and that they will have to send out from Washington a special corps of veterinarians to tinker up the digestive apparatus of its "bear."

However the government bear is quite a distinctive and interesting feature in the park and one would be surprised to see how kindly they take to civilization and especially to the garbage cans at the hotels in the various localities in the park.

There is always a band of them hanging around waiting for meal time. They are usually quite tame and friendly and they play together and indulge in all kinds of playful antics. They wrestle with one another and but very handsily and have even seen one boxing with a man and seemingly having a lot of fun out of it—not striking to hurt, either—and they certainly get to be pretty wise and exhibit much intelligence.

Are Inevitable Thieves

They are also inevitable thieves and robbers. I saw several people whose cars had been robbed by the "bear" of all ham, bacon, sugar and other stuff and all the other grub pawed over and run off in this way they are somewhat of a nuisance. They will also hold you up on the road. Now listen to this:

"YELLOWSTONE 'HOLDUP BEAR' IS BACK ON JOB"

"YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 23.—Jesse James, Yellowstone's famous 'holdup bear,' is back on the job."

"For a time park officials thought he had retired to an honest life, because weeks ago he went with no sign of the clever highwayman."

"But M. P. Skinner, park naturalist, officially reports that Jesse once more officially blocks the highway near the 'Thumb' on Lake Yellowstone."

"The bear's method of operation is unique. He squats in the middle of the road and waits for automobilists to appear. He stubbornly refuses to leave until fed by the motorists. Then he ambles on and lets the car pass. Thus far more than 100 tourists report being 'hold up.'"

"The above is true because we were held up about four miles out from the Thumb station on Yellowstone lake by this same Jesse James bear. When we came in sight of him he was standing up in the middle of the road and we had to stop or run into him. Of course everybody wanted to get a picture of the famous Jesse James 'holdup bear' of Yellowstone Park."

Pay Toll With Gingersnaps

Fortunately we had a box of gingersnaps in the grub box and Fred Claus paid the toll while the rest of them took pictures. I am sending you a picture of Fred and "Jesse James the holdup bear" of Yellowstone Park."

We got away from him pretty easy. For another car drove up behind us and he immediately left us and went to the other car to collect toll and we drove on and left him.

When we got to the Thumb station on the Yellowstone lake we told the ranger there about being held up and he at once asked if we fed him.

"Of course we fed no bear—I should say not, with all those signs hanging around." If Jesse James keeps up his lick his digestion and disposition will certainly be ruined beyond repair.

Not Many "Grizzlies"

Most of the bear around there now are black and brown bear and not the old fashioned grizzly bear. Years ago there used to be quite a few of the latter and I remember one time that a teamster called "Mack" had been scuffling with a big bear called "Baldy." Mack had got a five gallon kerosene can, had put a lot of pebbles in it, and had attached a wire to it with a slip noose that he threw over "Baldy's" head so that it acted the same as tying a tin can to a dog's tail. Maybe you think that old "Baldy" didn't hump himself getting away from there.

But "Baldy" Came Back

However, next morning "Baldy" was back at the lunch counter (garbage can) with the wire still around his neck and looking kind of foolish.

Jesse James, Bear Bandit, Perpetrates a Holdup.

but had evidently lost the can going over some windfall or something else. We got the wire off so that the rangers wouldn't suspect that we had been having fun with "Baldy." If they had found it out we would all have been deported or something else. "Feeding with bear" isn't allowed any more than "Feeding bear" is.

However, they get pretty smart and pretty wise and after you have run a bear for a time or two with a can attached to him he gets out of it and refuses to be disturbed by it. "No run, run bear any more," as the Indian says.

Big Bears Formerly Common

I think the big old fashioned grizzly bear must be about extinct as I seldom hear of one and seldom see a bear skin except of the black and brown variety, but years ago when I first came into this country big bears were common.

In the spring of '83 a man brought a bear skin in from the Bad mountain country which I saw spread down on the floor of Captain John Smith's saloon, and it was as big as a steer hide. He said the bear weighed over four hundred pounds and from the size of the hide I am prepared to believe it.

Saw Bear Eight Feet Tall

I once saw a bear of that kind alive and as he sat up he looked to me to be eight feet tall and about the most formidable beast that I ever looked on. I was going down to Lander, Wyo., a trip of about 350 miles, and when I got along as far as I knew the road, I hired a big cowpuncher called "Big Jess," who had been packing the mail over the Owl Creek mountains all winter, as a guide.

I had a pair of mules and a buckboard and some blankets and grub. One morning Jess and I got up and started up a creek called Twenty-one Creek—this was in April, and a wet snow had fallen during the night—and all at once I saw some tremendous tracks in the snow—like a big barefooted man had gone along.

"A Whale of a Bear"

I said to Jess, "There's a bear just gone along here."

"Yes," said Jess, "and he's a whale, too."

We drove along for a mile or so, keeping a sharp lookout. We had no rifle but Jess had a .45 Colt and I had a .44 Smith & Wesson six gun. We turned a corner suddenly and came upon the bear sitting up on his haunches about fifty yards off the road, looking at us. Say, but he was a formidable looking fellow.

I was driving the mules, and I said, "Jess, there's your bear."

Jess looked at him and said, "By God! He ain't mine—I ain't lost no bear. If you want him go and get him."

I was about to disclaim any ownership or interest in any and all bears whatsoever, when the mules suddenly took a hand in the situation—they had on blinders and couldn't see the bear, but they waded him all of a sudden—up came their ears and, woosh—they snorted and started on a run.

Mules Start for Next County

"Now if there is anything on earth that a mule is plumb crazy about it is a bear. He won't stay in the same county with a bear if he knows it and our mules lit out for the next county right pronto, with Jess and I both sawing on the lines and trying to keep them in the road and not wreck the buckboard. We lost the roll of bedding and after the mules had run a couple of miles we finally got them stopped because they had run them selves out of breath, but they still trembled and snorted and would have run away again on the smallest provocation. Jess had to go back and get the bedding and pack it in on his back.

The bear? Oh, we didn't go looking for any bear—we had trouble enough with the mules."

Col. Pickett's Bear Hunt

A famous bear hunter from Mississippi named Col. Pickett, came out into Wyoming a good many years ago and went bear hunting up on the head of Wood river. In one afternoon he killed four bears in one place. He immediately camped there, built a cabin, and had a postoffice established, called "Fourbear," and the last I knew of it was still there.

I met his sister last winter at Hot Springs, Ark., and she told me that the colonel was dead but that his estate still owned the "Fourbear" property and that while he lived he went there every year. However, she had never heard of his ever getting four bears in one day since that time. He was not the Col. Pickett of the famous charge at Gettysburg but a nephew of his.

A One-armed Bear Hunter

I knew a one-armed cowpuncher named Billy Estees who, notwithstanding the loss of an arm, was a good cowhand and could always get a job. He had a fine horse that he could guide with the pressure of his knee and by talking to him, giving him the use of his only hand. One day when out on the range he ran across a big silver up bear and with his one hand and six gun he killed this bear and somehow got the hide which was some feat.

Billy stayed in town that winter, and the winter was long, and he got broke. He didn't want to sell this bear skin—which was the most magnificent hide I ever saw—so he brought it over to me and put it up for $25 worth of grub. Spring was late, and all Billy's grub was gone when he started to go back to the range, so he came to me and said if I would let him have $15 worth more of grub that I could have the bear skin—which I did.

I sent the skin down east, had it tanned and lined and the head set up, which cost $125, and believe me, I had some bear skin—it was easily worth $400. My wife took it over to her mother's to store it and one day a Jew came along and offered her $32 for it and she sold it to him for that.

When this came out every body sent up the smoke sign and made the war medicine plenty but we never found the Jew and that was the end of Billy Estees' bear skin. Those Jews are pretty smart. You got to give it to them.

Another Smart Jew

Years ago there was a Jew in Billings named Susman. One day some Crow Indians came to town and brought with them a cub grizzly about as big as a shepherd dog, which they tried to sell for $5; but the bear gave such an exhibition of ferocity that everybody was discouraged except Susman, who bought the bear for $3. At that time the state said a bounty of $10 for bear, the county paid $5 and the Stockmen's association paid $5, provided the bear was not killed on an Indian reservation.

So Susman took the bear out in the back yard and shot it. He then took the hide to the court house and collected $20 on it—then he sold the meat for $5, and the skin for $5, making $30 in all. I asked Susman how much he made on the bear and he said ten per cent; he bought it for $3 and got $30 out of it. The Jew's 10 per cent, you see, but he was the only fellow in town who had sense enough to see that.

Henry Ford and some other people don't like the Jews, but they all got to admit that they are smart. They are so smart that some of the rest of us have a hard time keeping up with them.

Nearly Killed Over a Bear

One time another fellow and I came near getting killed indirectly over a bear—not by the bear, but over him, and it wasn't the bear's fault, either. One spring a wool buyer named Henry Martin, from Boston, came out. He was a member of the firm of Harding, Martin & Caverly, wool merchants of Boston.

Martin was a fine fellow, a Harvard graduate, and had been all over the world. He was married to General Colton's daughter. Colton was one of the "big four," Crocker, Stanford, Huntington and Colton, who built the Central Pacific railroad. Martin apparently had all the money that anybody ought to have.

He wanted to go up into the Judith and the Musselshell countries to his wool and stock consignments, so the people who worked for sent me along with him because I knew the country and most everybody in it, and Martin had discovered that I was a Yankee and wanted me. There was no railroad then and we were going about 200 miles by team away from the railroad.

The Cub Bear Gets Ugly

We made a most successful trip and a very enjoyable one, for Martin was a prince of good fellows. We got all through after five or six weeks and started back to the railroad. One evening about supper time, we came along to the Buffalo creek stage station, kept by an old fellow named Sayers, who was a discharged bugler from Ft. Maginniss, and had taken a job as stock tender with the stage company.

Sayers had picked up a cub bear some time when he had been out looking after the stage stock. It was then seven or eight months old and had turned ugly and he had it locked up in the granary. After we got there Sayers' wife went to feed the bear (she might not have been his wife, people were kind of careless in those days and the preachers were a good ways off) and the bear attacked her and tore her clothes and mauled her some before she got out. She declared it all off and promptly struck on feeding bear.

So the old man got a pick handle and went in to interview the bear, and after some considerable commotion in the granary he came out with his clothes in tatters and some scratches that didn't add particularly to his good looks. He was out of breath and panted: "I guess I must have hit that bear too hard—I am afraid I killed him."

I went and looked in and sure enough the bear was apparently kicking his last, and he certainly had "hit him too hard."

All the time that we were eating supper we could hear the old man and the old lady jawing away in the kitchen about the bear. We paid the bill and hitched up the team and prepared to go to Judith Gap that night, which was 110 miles from the railroad. We expected to make it in two days from the Gap.

The Fight Becomes General

Just as we got started away from the stage station there was a most astonishing racket from the house—there were howls and screams and apparently all the tidings fell down and the table tipped over and spilled all the dishes, and the old woman ran screaming from the house with the old man in pursuit. He overtook her and knocked her down and begged to "throw the boots into her," and kick her and stamp her in the face.

Martin jumped out of the wagon. I said, "You better let them alone and let 'em fight." Martin said, "My God, I can't stand that. He will kill her," and started toward them. About that time the old man aimed a kick at her face and the old lady caught his foot and upset him and he fell on his back, and in a second she was on top of him clawing and fighting like a wildcat. Martin stopped. As long as the old man was getting the worst of it he was going to let the fight go on, but pretty soon the old man turned her and got on top and was mauling her in the face with his fist.

Martin Joins the Scrap

Here Martin rushed in and pulled him off. The old fellow was just crazy with rage and immediately turned on Martin and began to fight him. After he had hit Martin five or six good jolts Martin lost his temper, too, and landed a hogsmacker on the old man's jaw that knocked him down.

About that time the old woman landed on Martin's back with both arms around his neck trying to pull him over backward and the old man got up and staggered toward the house.

I immediately guessed that he was going to get the rifle that I had seen hanging on the wall, a new 45-60 Winchester, and I woke up promptly, because I suspected the old man knew how to use it, and intended to. In fact, I knew that the old man was pretty hot with that Winchester and I yelled to Martin: "Hurry up. He's gone for the rifle."

The Heavy Artillery Comes in

Martin shook off the old woman and ran for the wagon—I already had the team going when he got hold of the mailbag and he scrambled in and lay among the bedding and snuff in the bottom of the wagon and I lashed to the team in a run. It didn't look to me as though that was a healthy locality for Little Henry and Old Rich, and I was anxious to get out of range. I didn't know what that crazy old devil would do but I soon found out.

He came out of the house with the Winchester and I saw him take aim over my shoulder, but there was no report as the gun wasn't loaded, and then I saw him showing cartridges into the breech and then "Whang!" went the old Winchester and a bullet whined over my head. I knew the next instant would be the end of me and I threw myself down on the bottom between the dashboard and the seat. I lashed the horses around the legs and they were running away then for.

One Shot Takes Effect

"Whang!" went the Winchester again and it just zipped across the top of the seat. There was a little rise out of Buffalo creek and then the ground sloped down the other way. I knew if I could get over that rise I would be out of range, and I also knew that the old man had the range then, and when we got to the sky line that he would most likely win somebody. Sure enough when we got to the crest he let go again and one of the horses reared up and shook his head, but kept on running and we were soon over the crest and out of sight. I got hold of the lines then and tried to stop the team, which were then running like scared wolves. I saw the blood running down the neck of one of the horses and I knew he had been hit, but it was a mile or two before I got them stopped.

Wound Not Serious

I got out to see how badly the horse was hurt, and found that the rifle had played along the top of the neck in the mane, a place about three inches long. While it bled a good deal, it was nothing serious. I got a bucket of water from a creek and washed the blood off, got out my grip and tore up an old shirt to bandage the horse and stop the blood.

Martin got out, too. I saw him opening his grip and he produced a bottle of whiskey that I didn't know he had. He was pretty white around the gills and said to me, "I feel like a drink of whiskey would do me good." He took a drink and offered me one.

Martin Gets No Thanks

I guess I was as scared as he was, but I wasn't going to let on. So after I had a good sort of the hooch I got talkative and said, "You d—n fool, you came near getting us both killed."

He said, "Don't I know it?"

I said, "What look in did you have in that fight?"

"Well, I thought he was going to kill her."

"Suppose he had—what of it?"

"They can kill 'em all before I interfere again."

About three months afterward I passed that way on the stage going to Ft. Benton and had dinner at Buffalo Creek Station. Nobody mentioned the affair and I didn't ask about the bear and his ultimate fate. If they were willing to forget it I sure was, and also the Winchester still hanging on the wall. But peace seemed to have been declared and peace looked good to me.

ENTERTAINING THE ARMY INTERESTING BOOK PENNED BY A LA CROSSE PRODUCER

JAMES EVANS IS AUTHOR OF FINE VOLUME ON WAR

Players Took Important Part in Winning the Big Strife
Over There

Just what an important part the American stage and lyceum played to assist in winning the world war, is described in an entertaining and interesting style in a book, "Entertaining the American Army," written jointly by James W. Evans, La Crosse dramatic producer and coach, and Captain Gardner L. Harding, attached to General Pershing's staff, intelligence division of the war department. The volume, which is just off the press, is published under the auspices of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association.

Born in the city of Omaha, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Evans, James W. Evans graduated with the first class to finish in the high school of that city, in 1891. His mother still lives in Omaha. Early showing a liking for amateur theatricals, he became a member of a small road company and in a few years became a producer and manager of plays. For two years Mr. Evans was manager for Walker Whiteside, and he was with the Schuberts in an executive capacity for three years. Mr. Evans is now a producer of home talent plays, employing a large staff of executives and putting on productions in all parts of the United States each year.

On Headquarters Staff

As a member of the headquarters staff of the entertainment division of the overseas Y. M. C. A. work for 16 months, Mr. Evans, who is spending his vacation here, declares he had his most interesting and inspiring theatrical experience during the year and a half he spent in Paris. During this time 1,000 prominent American actors and actresses journeyed to France to entertain the boys in khaki. Into the theater or the cow-barn, to the rent or station platform they brought the gospel of laughter and cheered up the tired and homesick fighters. Mr. Evans said:

"While it is conceded that this was one of the most effective arms of the army, and it is generally understood that the American stage and lyceum performed a great service, the magnitude of it is little known by the public," declare the co-authors in their preface. "It is realized that the American stage was one of the most powerful forces behind all the Liberty loans, Red Cross drives and United war work campaigns; that it was directly instrumental in raising hundreds of millions of dollars; that it recruited the entertainers from every available source, including actors; lyceum entertainers, lecturers, singers, musicians, song leaders, motion picture stars and operators, vaudeville performers, soldier shows, stock companies—all merging in this achievement—which required the organization of play bureaus, costume and scenic factories, transportation of fees, and the leasing of many of the most famous theaters in Europe; that it enrolled in its operations at home and abroad more than 35,000 men and women. This volume is submitted as a tribute not only to the entertainers, but to the American army—one more contribution to the records of America's fight for humanity in the world war."

Famous Players There

One of the valuable features of the book is an indexed list of the notable entertainers who journeyed abroad to entertain the boys in khaki. In the list are Elsie Janis, E. H. Sothern, Julia Marlowe, Margaret Mayo, Burt McIntosh, Walter Damrosch and dozens of other famous actors and entertainers as well as many of the best known producers and lyceum artists in the country.

One of the noteworthy musical productions put on for the benefit of the boys "over there" was "Who Can Tell," produced by Donald McDonald of La Crosse, known in the theatrical world as "Dinnie" McDonald.

Big Business Stunt

According to a compilation in this volume the war entertainment enterprise furnished 100,794 separate performances to the soldiers; with an approximate attendance overseas of $7,000,000 and more than 40,000,000 at home. It gave overseas 157,000 matinee shows aggregating over 8,000,000 feet, or more than 1,500 miles of film. The aggregate attendance at these movie shows alone was over 94,000,000 at 5,261 different places. It organized four great "play factories" which were centers for rehearsals and costume equipment. It provided overseas alone 23,000 costumes and accessories, 15,000 musical instruments and 450,000 pieces of sheet music. It took over and ran in the leave areas and important cities behind the fighting line the largest circuit of theaters, casinos and amusement halls ever administered under one management.

"The adventures of these modern troubadours, if each could be persuaded to relate his own experiences, would give deep insight into the most human side of the war," assert the authors. "There would be tales aboard ship, nights on submarine seas, the first hours ashore at the base ports, the journeys into the bleeding heart of France, the last march on the road to battle."

First Man Over

According to the authors the man to whom the honor should probably go of being the first American entertainer to go "overseas" after America's declaration of war, is Jack Barker, who arrived in Bordeaux May 16, 1917, six weeks before the arrival of General Pershing and the first American contingent. Barker was a young college man just graduated from Northwestern university. Sent to England, he sang his way into the hearts of the Britishers and then went over to France to cover the American camp circuit at a time when entertainers were "worth a regiment," the book relates.

The first American to go directly to the American army in France was Gerry Reynolds, who could sing, tell stories and give rollicking imitations.

The first male entertainer to appear among the fighting troops was a song and piano artist, C. E. Clifford Walker.

First Woman Entertains

The first woman entertainer to appear with the A. E. F. was a grand opera contralto, Mme. Cobbina Johnson, wife of Owen Johnson, the novelist. Mme. Johnson made a great hit. She could sing at any time under any conditions, whether with a band, a piano or alongside a canteen counter. Mrs. August Belmont, known on the stage as Eleanor Robinson, is accredited with being one of the earliest entertainers for the army "over there." Another of the pioneers with the First Division at this time was Miss Anna Huggins, a Philadelphia girl. She was a great song leader and worker without remuneration. "She literally was the first to set the army to singing its way to victory."

Elsie Janis Cheered

One of the interesting reminiscences in the volume is the story of the part that Elsie Janis took in entertaining the soldiers in France. It follows in part:

"Four thousand waiting doughboys are striding on the tracks. Suddenly there is a shout. A big Baldwin locomotive puffs up one of the tracks. The motive power on either side, cheering madly, for there on the cow-catcher, her famous fluted skirt streaming in the breeze, her hand waving the usual cheery salute to everybody, is 'the girl.' Up to the very platform she proceeds, jumps nimbly off, turns a handspike and shouts: 'Boys, are we down-hearted?' There comes a thunderous ear-splitting answer: 'Hell, no!' It is Elsie Janis, who from this day becomes the sweetheart of the army, in the most spectacular stage entrance in the annals of the theater."

Always Popular

"What this American girl was to accomplish in the armies in France; how she was to go along the battle lines to arouse the cheers of 'my boys,' how she worked day and night for six months in camps, hospitals, leave areas with fighting regiments, in dugouts, up to the very lines where it required the army to hold her back from going over the top, is one of the war's classics."

"Elsie's performance was simplicity itself. It consisted of a few songs, some stories, some imitations, a little dancing, another story and 'Good-night.' This could be repeated over and over again and nobody seemed to get tired. Elsie sang French songs as well as English songs, and when her French songs failed she would translate English songs into French songs and vice versa."

Equally interesting are other anecdotes of the experiences which celebrated entertainers had in France. The volume concludes with a list of all the entertainers who went across the ocean in the great war.

Two Prized Letters

Two prized letters of appreciation of the valuable work done by the Y. M. C. A. in France were received by Mr. Evans from President Woodrow Wilson and General Pershing. The letters follow:

"Paris, June 26, 1919.

"My Dear Mr. Evans:

"I am very glad to testify that in my opinion the entertainment department of the Y. M. C. A. has done a very fine and valuable, not to say indispensable, work for the men. I have been able to keep more or less ac-

FOLLOW NEW PLAN FOR DEVELOPMENT OF THE WATERWAYS

Mississippi Valley Association Announces District Scheme of Getting Results

Committees, representing every waterway district in the Mississippi valley, have been formed by the Mississippi Valley Association, an organization fostering the movement for waterway development in this territory. It was announced by James E. Smith, St. Louis, vice president in charge of the waterway division of the association.

The committees were formed as a new plan of the Mississippi Valley association, according to Smith, to more effectively co-ordinate the waterway forces of the valley and to make possible the early completion of the waterway development work already authorized, and to assure equitable activity in behalf of the development of all navigable streams in the Mississippi valley where the practicability of such work is determined.

Eleven Districts

There will be eleven waterway districts, represented by committees. These are as follows: Intercoastal canal, Illinois river, Lower Mississippi river, Missouri river, Ohio river, Upper Mississippi river, Warrior river, and the Great Lakes district. Committees, representing the tributaries of the Ohio and the tributaries of the Mississippi, have also been formed. The personnel of the committees is to be announced later, Smith said.

In the following interview, made public today, Smith outlines the district committee plan, and the resultant benefits to accrue through its proper functioning.

"The crying need of the Mississippi valley, the greatest producing area of the United States, is the necessary increase of its transportation facilities, to enable its inhabitants to handle promptly and economically, their rapidly growing commerce and to provide for the further development of its untouched and almost unlimited resources."

Railroads at Limit

"That our railroads have reached the limit of their capacity for rendering prompt and satisfactory service admits of no argument, for this fact is generally conceded. It is also an apparent fact that the development and use of the great waterways, which flow through this fertile and productive region, is the only solution of this, the greatest problem that now confronts us as a nation."

"In order that a systematic plan may be put into effect for securing this greatly needed development, the entire Mississippi basin is being divided into eleven river and canal districts and a committee composed of five prominent men is being selected to represent each particular district. Each of these eleven committees will have its chairman, and these eleven chairmen will constitute the executive committee of the waterways division of the Mississippi Valley association. These eleven district committees are now being organized and a meeting will be held, in the near future, in each of the eleven districts, at which meetings the vice president in charge of the waterways division, will be present to discuss with each group their legislative needs and to explain the necessary procedure to secure them during the next session of congress. The five prominent men who will represent each particular district in the valley, will seek and secure the full co-operation of the commercial, agricultural and the general interests of their respective sections, in making a demand upon their congressmen and senators for the improvement of the waterways, not only in their particular section but throughout the entire Mississippi valley territory."

"By uniting behind our association, the people of the whole valley and, have them all working together, we will soon secure the square deal that has heretofore been withheld from them."

quoted with what was being done and want to express my approval not only, but my genuine admiration and sincere appreciation.

AT THE RIVOLI
What is said to be one of the largest and most colorful costume ball scenes that has ever been staged was filmed for the forthcoming Elaine Hammerstein production, "The Girl From Nowhere," a Selznick picture, which plays today at the Rivoli theater. The big scene represents the day when booted cavaliers paid homage to bareheaded girls, and Cordean bandits ran wild with Norman peasants.
In this scene Miss Hammerstein, as Mavis Cole, holds the center of the stage in a quaint Colonial gown and powdered wig, while about her is created an air of wealth and distinction that is to be found only at the affairs of society's "400." Over two hundred extras were engaged for the scene.
Prominent members of the supporting cast include William B. Davidson, in the leading male role, Louise Jussing, Colin Campbell and Al H. Stewart. The story was written by Bradley King and the picture directed by George Archambault.

TO PLEASE ONE WOMAN
What would do to please a woman? Adam ate the forbidden fruit to please Eve. Samson was shorn of his strength and met death on account of Delilah. Marc Antony gave up hours at Rome to dally with Cleopatra.
The pages of history are filled with accounts of man's sacrifice to satisfy woman's caprice.

According to Lois Weber, it isn't only in history that women exercise their charms for selfish purposes. Miss Weber in "To Please One Woman" her latest picture production, gives a modern setting to the old story. The story deals with the havoc wrought by a certain rich, selfish woman who, having driven her husband to risk his all in her behalf, takes up her residence in a mansion near a rural seaside town to wait the result of his plunge. While there, she becomes interested in a young country doctor and, true to form, induces him to share his romance with the girl he has loved since boyhood. How matters finally adjust themselves happily is revealed in a film drama that is remarkable for its true-to-life and deep appeal.

A new beauty of the screen, Claire Windsor, plays the leading feminine role in "To Please One Woman," and the cast also includes Edward Burns.

Mona Lisa, and Edith Kessler. Lois Weber wrote and directed the picture, which is a Paramount release. "To Please One Woman" comes to the Rivoli next Monday till Wednesday.

AT THE RIVIERA

This is the story of the "Law of the Northwest," at the Riviera today.

Harry Moore, weak willed and pampered is tempted by the Gay White Way of the city to neglect the duties of the position in which his father, a wealthy merchant, had placed him with the intention that the son should succeed him in his business. Harry however prefers the gay, easy life to real serious work and as a result of his indolence becomes involved in considerable trouble. He commits forgery in order to pay his restaurant debt and attempts suicide by shooting himself when he is accused of the crime. Mr. Moore discovers this and decides that the only way of reclaiming his son is to send him to some logging camp in the Far Northwest. Harry is consequently sent away up north to a lumber camp in charge of Bill Cooper, a former employee of Moore. In this camp Harry makes some half hearted attempts to mend his way.

A notorious smuggler who takes refuge in the camp to avoid capture by the Northwest Mounted Police is shot dead when he tries to escape and leaves an only daughter, a beautiful girl named Nanette.

Between Nanette and Bill Cooper an attachment arises which gradually ripens into love. In the absence of Bill, Harry makes advances to the girl but is repulsed.

During the struggle which follows between Nanette and Harry, Bill returns just in time to prevent further harm being done. Harry escapes but the Lumber Jacks go in pursuit and kill him in accordance with the "Law of the Northwest" which prescribes death to him who insults a woman.

Bill Cooper is united in marriage with Nanette and the true story of Harry's fate is never told to his father. Mr. Moore, who remains peacefully in the city in the belief that the reformation of his son is complete.

Max Golden's Jubilee Girls will present "The Man From Viroqua," another big laugh show.

ALL MEN REPENT

GOD commandeth all men everywhere to repent.—Acts 17: 30.

A Bit of Good News

THE statement of Superintendent Egge in Chicago the other day that there were good prospects for an early resumption of the air-mail service between Chicago and the Twin Cities was mighty good news. We in La Crosse are glad for it because it means the return of air-mail service to this city, with all that may mean to present and future civic progress and prosperity. We fought hard to make La Crosse an air-mail station, were extremely disappointed to lose it, and will welcome it back as delightedly as we did on its inauguration. But that the air-mail is coming back is good news beyond its local significance. It means, we hope, that the value of the air-post as a factor in the encouragement and development of the aerial industry in the United States is not completely overlooked in official quarters. Under existing law, the only support that the government may give to airway development outside of army and navy activities lies in the postal service. It is little enough, but at that too much to be thrown overboard at a time when France, England, Germany, Italy and Japan are developing air service, commercially and for military purposes, by subsidies and every other sort of governmental encouragement. The United States, whose Lilliputian, Chanute and Wrights made possible the miracle of aviation, are already far behind the rest of the world in progress along the path that these great scientists and inventors opened to mankind. We can not afford to lag still further back. It is not inconceivable that some day aerial supremacy may mean as much to nations as merchant marine and navy do now. To accept inferiority without a struggle is a dangerous as well as ignoble attitude for the richest and most prosperous nation in the world.

Disarmament

THERE is much in President Harding's communication bidding the powers to a disarmament conference which invites confidence. Perhaps its greatest strength lies in the fact that it does not ignore the truth that this is a popular movement backed by public opinion generally among all peoples, but while it goes far in this direction there appear to be reservations which, if enlarged under pressure, might lead to mistakes similar to those which rendered the Wilson enterprise vulnerable. That both army and navy, and new fighting agencies now in development, may be considered is distinctly encouraging.

Disarmament especially concerns nations which have great armaments, and so it is natural that only the four great military and naval powers are being consulted on the ground floor. But such is the extent of influence and control of the large nations over smaller peoples that the adjustment of differences affecting the fate of these smaller peoples will interest these lesser nations quite as much as the greater. Fundamental to disarmament is the removal of the causes of war, and these lurk largely in matters of trade and political authority extending over the earth. That these can be so disposed of as to remove the probability of war without consulting the smaller countries seems so unlikely that one must surmise such consultation as the conference progresses. One of the first difficulties will doubtless be due to the efforts of all the major powers to keep their own colonies and spheres of influence out of the discussion, just as Japan has sought to do as a condition precedent to her participation. Nothing but the relentless pressure of public opinion upon the backs of the statesmen will thwart this, nor need one suspect that those who fatten on war manufactures will neglect any opportunity to create and magnify complications and objections.

The president's declaration for open negotiations is qualified by reservations that are disquieting. He "would not open all sessions to the public," according to Washington dispatches. Under so broad a statement he would have made good his position were a single open session held. Here again is the Wilson pitfall, condemned by republicans. Will Harding slip into it? Secrecy is a web that draws its victim further and further in. It may be urged that to hold the first ground-laying conferences in the open would break the meeting up. One may doubt the merits of this statement. Nations might withdraw for secret reasons they would not even dare set up in the open for their people at home to read. Nations might withdraw for good reasons in the open, but surely they would be less likely to withdraw for bad. Secrecy seems not essential for honest compromise, but it is the natural cover for dishonest demands and cowardly concessions. If this is not a people's movement it will never get anywhere; if it is a people's movement it will proceed better under the eye of the whole world. And if it is a people's movement, and if those who represent the people now wreck it upon selfish quarrels, it will become a world issue to be revived following the next elections. Once this of ours was a queer country in which it was said that "the will of the people shall be the law of the land." Now all the world is queer (in this sense of democracy) excepting Japan, and Japan is a little queer. For the time is here, with only a few housecleanings to come, when "the will of the peoples shall be the law of the world."

Flying in China

IF we don't watch out, even the backward Chinese are going to beat us at the airplane game. They have inaugurated an air service for passengers and mail between Peking and Shanghai and it is proving so successful that the Peking government is arranging for its extension over the entire country. In the meantime nobody in our government, outside of the flying divisions of the army and navy, seems to be taking much interest in airplane development.

Poor Proof

SENATOR FRANCE, at Riga, just out of Russia, accuses Dr. Ed. W. Ryan, American Red Cross commissioner in the Baltic States, of having instigated the Kronstadt revolt against the bolsheviks, last winter. The senator says he is going to prove it by officials of the bolshevist foreign office. If that is the only proof France can offer to support his charge we should say that Ryan need not worry.

AMSTERDAM, long a famous seaport, is winning a name as an airport. Within two weeks recently 270 passengers passed in and out of a single airdrome there. TELLING MISS DREW

BY JANE OSBORN

It had been a dull executive's meeting—seemingly to Rodney Blaine a great waste of time. Mr. Stewart, the president of the concern, was going to Europe and Mr. Stone, of the Chicago office, a sixty-year-old contemporary of Mr. Stewart, was coming to take his place in the New York office. The meeting had been called to make final arrangements—arrangements which it seemed to Rodney could have been made as well without his presence.

But when the six other executives were making their departure from Mr. Stewart's office and Rodney was trying to escape the usual threshold parley, Mr. Stewart stopped him, placed a fatherly hand on the young man's shoulder and asked him to wait.

The others gone, he turned back to his desk, requested Rodney to close the door and then to sit down beside him.
"There is something I want you to do—something simple, but very important," began Mr. Stewart. "I have the greatest respect for Mr. Stone and know that his coming here may be fraught with many inconveniences and anxieties. Now, I'm having the office turned about a little to please him. He will like a rocking chair in his office. I don't know whether it is a Chicago custom—never notice it—but I've ordered a couple of them to be put here, and I've had two additional electric fans and—by the way, that reminds me—"

"Of what you wanted me to do?" asked Blaine, somewhat bored by all these considerations for Mr. Stone.

"Only this," Mr. Stewart hesitated and then plunged ahead. "It's about Miss Drew. It would be a little difficult for me, you see. She's an excellent young woman, and invaluable. We couldn't get along without her. That's why it will need some one with a great deal of tact. Dear me, we couldn't get along without Miss Drew. You will be tactful, won't you?"

"You see," Stewart continued without waiting for a rejoinder, "Miss Drew knows so much about the business, we couldn't possibly have her go. She is to be Mr. Stone's secretary. I've used to her, but Miss Drew is better, rather."

"Yes," agreed Blaine, calling to view the snapping black eyes and vigorous, waving black hair of Mr. Stewart's secretary. "She is a trifle. . . ."

"Quite so. I don't mind it now. Though I must confess she rather upsets me at first. And of course, if she becomes really annoyed at any one I imagine she would be a tartar. It is her temperament. We spoil her here, too. Headquarters, fine looking girls like that usually are spoiled when they have unusual brains."

"You surely don't expect that I can dull the edge of her temper or tame the untamable, do you?" "Oh, no, no. Just suggest that as Mr. Stone is a stranger and not very young nor in exceptionally good health, and possibly a little slow in some respects—for she is especially impatient of slowness—that she might treat him with gentleness. We decided before you got to the meeting that some one would better suggest this to her, and for reasons we decided that you would best be able to do it."

"But I have no little business association with Miss Drew," protested Rodney.

"That is one of the reasons why we thought you could undertake the matter. Then you are young—"

Mr. Stewart paused and a kindly smile came into his eyes. "Really, she is not ill natured. When she has called me down, as it were, I have always deserved it. When I have been playing better golf than business, I feel like a small boy who has been playing schoolmate. She is sharp-tongued, but she is not ill natured. I believe she is barely twenty-one. I don't care how you go about it, Rodney," said Mr. Stewart with an air of finality, "but I depend on you to broach the matter and I know you won't fall down."

This was the hardest assignment that Blaine had ever had in his association with Mr. Stewart. The fact that he always did, and did promptly, what he was asked by his chief, was the cause of his rapid advancement in the firm.

Rodney had never taken much notice of her before, but now he deliberately studied her face and her expression when she was not looking. So he had made up his mind that the only way to go about it was to become friendly with her, to get her confidence and then to make an honest broach of the matter. So Rodney Blaine cultivated Miss Drew's acquaintance. He was unsuccessful in the usual way of an invitation to lunch, so he sought to make the acquaintance of those who knew Miss Drew socially.

HAVE YOU SENTENCE SENSE? TEST WITH SCRAMBLED WORDS

Do you know a perfect sentence when you see it, do you understand its meaning groups of words as sentences?

A certain college professor says that many people have no sentence sense, even when they enter college. They write sentences without subjects and without predicates. Test yourself. If you have no sentence sense, start right in to cultivate it.

The following mental test is called a "Disarranged Sentence" test. Tests of this order were used during the war in the military examinations that were given to our soldiers.

The test consists of a number of "scrambled" sentences. The object is to arrange the words in their proper order. Each group of words is rearranged properly will form a perfect sentence.

With to are hear ears our. The in sets very sun the. Good light country soldiers their for.

Winter the coldest the are months. Is a milk and food healthful food. From earth diamonds the, mined are.

Food valuable potatoes are are. And on grow oranges trees apples. An interesting game for a party can be made from this mental test.

Mix in a number of groups of words that can not be arranged to make perfect sentences. This will test some of the people and cause lots of fun for all.

Remarkable Discovery

It has been discovered lately that the great artist, Rembrandt, before painting his pictures wrote capital R's and full signatures many times over n't canvas. These were covered over with the painting and have only lately been brought to light by the X-ray.

The discovery was made by Mr. Francis H. Clarke, an English art critic. He gives as an explanation that Rembrandt needed a means of detecting fraudulent works dishonestly sold as his own, and believes that the artist would be very much surprised today to know that his secret has been discovered.

Parables of Safed the Sage

THE PARABLE OF THE ICE-WATER TANK

BY DR. WILLIAM E. PARTON

HERE were two young mothers from Italy, and they had each of them several children, whereof the oldest was a little girl. And she was about the age of the daughter of Keturah. And they rode upon the train. And they had a bottle of the Ice Water Tank. And she drank thereof, and she carried it to each of the mothers, and to each of the children, all that was in the bottle.

And by the time the last one had been refreshed, the first one was thirsty. And the little girl began again, and went around the circle of the two families. And they drank of it as freely as it had been fed.

Now the little girl wore a dress of ing to the same church—all with the hopes of something having the opportunity he had been asked to find.

Rodney Blaine was the first of the firm to leave Mr. Stewart after his return home, and after a very brief discussion of business interests, Mr. Stewart brought up the subject that was apparently uppermost in his mind. "Were you successful in giving Miss Drew her little tin of?"

"Not exactly," began Rodney.

"Heavens, man," interrupted Mr. Stewart, "you don't mean you let her boss Stone around the way she has been bossing me. Don't explain. I was afraid you wouldn't tell her. Of course, Stone wouldn't stand for her tongue. He is not patient as I am. I have felt it all along. No one has mentioned her in my letters. It happened just as I feared. Stone wouldn't stand for her bossing, and now she's left. Rodney, I'm sorry you let this happen. Miss Drew was one of my greatest business assets."

"But she hasn't left," Blaine explained as soon as he had an opportunity. "They were interrupted by the overpowering Mr. Stone, and Rodney Blaine was glad of an excuse to withdraw."

Mr. Stone, after hearty greetings had been exchanged, waived all discussion of business. He closed Mr. Stewart's office door and talked in a subdued voice.

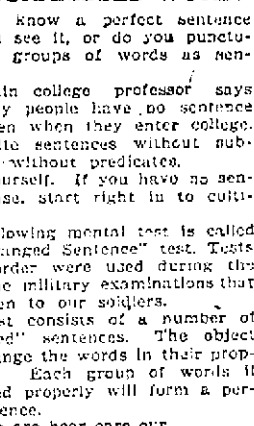

"There is something I want to ask you," he said. "I didn't want to write it. But a good share of my happiness depends on the answer you give. Is Rodney Blaine serious in his regards for Miss Drew? He seems to follow her about, always seems to be trying to tell her something. I am more than interested in the girl myself. Frankly I'd ask her to marry me."

"Marry you?" gasped Stewart sinking back in his chair. "Marry a girl with a temper like that?"

"The best tempered girl in the world," interposed Mr. Stone. "The point is this: I am a newcomer. I have no right cutting Blaine out if he really loves the girl. If he doesn't I have hopes of persuading her to become my wife."

"Then she didn't leave?" Mr. Stewart seemed momentarily relieved.

FAMOUS ANECDOTES OF FAMOUS PEOPLE

Mark Twain

At one time when Mark Twain was very busy with one of his earlier books, he sailed for a tour of Europe with his family. While on shipboard he kept up his writing.

One day as he went to work he left word with his little daughter to explain his absence to anyone who inquired.

"If they ask for me," he said, "say that I won't be long. I am only going to write an anecdote."

A few minutes later a friend asked the child where her father was.

"He won't be gone long," she replied. "He said he is only going to ride a rainy goat."

Not Very Often

An undertaker from the great city was visiting in the country.

"People out here don't die very often, do they?" he remarked.

"No, only once," was the reply.

Soldier "don't".

ONE REEL YARNS

FAT'S DOWNFALL

The gang was going camping. Judge Marshall had told his son Hal that he might have their shack at the lake for the week-end. Hal was the ring-leader of the gang so it took him only a few minutes to gather the fellows together and plan a camping party. There were eight in the gang but Skeet and Fat could not go till Saturday night. The other six left on Friday afternoon.

As the fellows sat around the camp fire Friday night they planned what they should do the following day.

Hal's idea

"Tell you what, fellows," said Hal, "let's fix Fat's cot for him and have a little run tomorrow night. I know where there is a saw and we can saw the legs of his cot almost off. Then when he gets in they will break and he'll go tumbling on the floor. Hal chuckled gleefully at the prospect. "It's a good idea," he said. "I had it tried on me once and it sure lets you down with a thud."

"Won't your father care if we spill one of his cots?" Pete asked dubiously.

"Oh, we can fix it up afterwards," Hal replied carelessly. "He won't care—much. Any way it'll be worth it. Can't you just see old Fat picking himself up off the ground?"

At this they all roared with laughter. It would be a great joke on Fat. He was always playing tricks on them, too.

Fat Arrives

When Skeet and Fat arrived the next evening Hal had the cot all fixed for Fat's downfall. He was anxious for the fellows to go to bed in the middle of the cot with a bounce. Six months were wide open all ready to roar at the result but nothing happened. Slowly the fellows closed their mouths and looked at each other bewildered.

The Jokes on Hal

"Oh, Shoot," thought Hal, "I didn't saw the legs far enough across." Suddenly he felt tired and cross. Without stopping to undress he threw himself down on his cot. Immediately there was a loud crash followed by a dull thud and Hal lay sprawling on the floor.

"How—how—how," laughed Tub. "If you hadn't been so anxious to go to bed I never would have caused it."

E. D. JOHANSEN TO SAIL AUGUST 26TH FOR DENMARK VISIT

Miss Christine Dahle Decently
Became the Bride of Mr.
Alfred Nelson

RUSHFORD, Minn. — Special. — After a three years' residence in this city as managers of the Northwestern Hotel, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Johansen have decided to leave, giving over to the new proprietors, Mrs. and Mrs. G. K. Leuchtenberg, of Forest City, Ia., the management of the place. The new parties to the deal have already taken over the business. Mrs. Johansen and two daughters, the Misses Myrtle and Stella, have gone to Chilpeau Falls, Wis., for a visit with relatives and other friends; later going to La Crosse for a visit, in which city they will remain until family plans are perfected. Mr. Johansen expects to sail on the 26th of this month for Denmark; having in that country a cousin who is an extensive exporter. Since Mr. Johansen has formerly acted as interpreter for five years before coming to the U. S., he expects to find a position as such with his cousin. Should he remain in Denmark, the family will make their home in New York city. The Johansen family has made many friends since coming to Rushford and have proven themselves experts in the art of conducting a good hotel.

At the North Prairie parsonage, a few miles from Rushford, Rev. C. M. Larson was the officiating minister who performed the marriage ceremony which made Miss Christine Dahle the bride of Alfred Nelson. Both of the contracting parties are Rushford residents; the bride being a daughter of Mrs. C. Dahle; and the bridegroom a son of Mr. Nelson. They were attended by Miss Ella Brown, the bride's cousin; also Arthur Halvorson, the bridegroom's cousin at best man. Winona and other points near that city were included in the wedding trip; while Rice Lake, Wis., will also be visited before the young couple come to Rushford again to make their home.

Another wedding of interest here and which took place a short time ago, was that of Miss Anna Gullickson, of Peterson, Minn., and Mr. John M. Hill, also of Peterson. Rev. O. M. Saeve, pastor of the Peterson Lutheran church, but whose residence is in Rushford, performed the marriage ceremony at his home here; the contracting parties' attendants being Miss Annie Hill, bridegroom's sister and Mr. Amos Hill. The honeymoon included the Twin Cities.

Big Spring, near Peterson, five miles west of Rushford, was the gathering point of over fifty relatives and other friends of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thompson of Peterson, recently; when these people met for a family picnic dinner and an afternoon of visiting.

When the members of the local W. O. T. U. recently entered a membership campaign for a new member of their Union, it was expected that five new names might be found to add to the list of eighty-five or ninety already there. When all had been reported it was found that twelve new names had been taken. The Union's President, Mrs. A. Wright, of Brooklyn, opened her pleasant home for a social evening for these ladies' reception into the ranks and a most enjoyable evening was spent. A program of vocal and instrumental music was given by Mrs. Wright's daughter, Miss H. Louise Wright, who is an instructor in music at St. Olaf's College, Northfield. She was assisted by one of her college pupils, Miss Myrtle Jensen, of this city; also by Miss Geneva Halvorson, another of her Rushford pupils. A delicious luncheon was served at the close of the program. Between thirty and forty of the old members of the Union were present to welcome the new members. The Dr. J. W. Magelssen home in this city has recently enjoyed a visit from Rev. and Mrs. N. M. Ylvisaker and their son, Rolf, also Mrs. Bord and son Clarence, all of Minneapolis; their vacation being spent here.

Orrin Tagland, a former Rushford young man, now a dentist at Fosston, Minn., has been a recent visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Tagland and of other relatives and friends here and in this vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tagland, their daughter, both and Mr. and Mrs. Lukason and two children, have all recently enjoyed a two-weeks' camping trip at Stone Lake, in Northern Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Steeland of North Rushford, have recently enjoyed a visit from their eldest son, Bertram, who is employed in the car shops at Enderline, N. D.

Mrs. Margaret Carrier, who resides at Medford, Minn., has been a recent visitor here; coming down to see her mother, Mrs. A. McDermid who is recovering from a severe illness.

A resident of Rushford forty-two years ago, Mr. Duncan Erskine, now of St. Paul, has recently visited this place and renewed acquaintanceship with those of his old-time friends, Mr. Erskine, his wife and two daughters, were guests while in Rushford of the Thomas Ferguson home on Stevens avenue.

The Dr. H. W. Eldred home in Brooklyn and the Deio Vier home on Stevens avenue have recently entertained other old-time Rushford residents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keeler, for several years residents of Los Angeles, Calif. Money's Creek relative and other friends also entertained the Keelers before their return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Martin of Brooklyn are visiting relatives and others in the western portion of this state, the trip being made by auto. After fifty years' absence, Dr. J. W. Magelssen of this city has recently been a visitor to Stoughton, Wis., where he practiced medicine before moving to Rushford. The doctor and his two daughters, Miss Elsie and Mrs. N. M. Ylvisaker and her husband and son made the trip by car. Rev. Ylvisaker giving an address at a Luther league meeting at Madison, Wis.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Volkman, near Hart, was the meeting place of a jolly crowd of friends, recently, when about thirty-five of them joined forces to spend the evening. The afternoon was spent in visiting, enjoying vocal and instrumental music and playing cards. A delicious supper was served before the guests departed.

The City park was the mecca for many of the Rushford youngsters and also their parents and other friends, when at 6:45 the young folks were entertained at a story-telling circle and games of many kinds were played. The affair was a new venture for Rushford and us had been promised, a number of Rushford young ladies managed the outing. The Misses Milda Sundby and Marion Ness, students at the Winona Teachers' college, held spellbound a large circle of girls, with tales of various kinds, the underlying thought in each being that of doing kindly deeds. The Misses

Clara Kjos and Geneva Halvorson entertained the boys with the reading of tales of deed and daring, with intermissions of games, old and new, such as prisoners' base, etc. The fun and frolic was also enjoyed by a goodly number of mothers and fathers, who, as spectators, certainly appreciated the work of the young ladies. Next Friday evening at the same hour, another playtime will be enjoyed, several other young ladies aiding.

Well Called "China's Sorrow"

The Huang Ho or Yellow river, Chinese records show, once flowed through a rich fertile valley, its tributary hills well wooded. Today it is a broad marshy quicksand with a small amount of water most of the year, but when the floods come the whole face of the landscape may be changed. In 1856 this river, which is known as "China's Sorrow," flooded some 20,000 square miles of the most densely populated lands, wiped out thousands of villages and towns, and drowned 2,000,000 people.

Why Has It Led For All These Years?

Its Prestige Endures

Brief popularity is not hard to win. A car may appear to give good value for the price asked, and gain a substantial volume of buyers.

But will it hold and win added prestige each succeeding year?

Not unless the good apparent value is also a permanent value, proved in the continued dependability and good performance of the car.

Witness the many cars of good name, which enjoyed a forward position in the industry a few years ago, and which are today hardly considered, if indeed they are in business at all.

Hudson has not only held, but each year has added to its prestige, because men know its qualities of fine performance and dependability endure for years and thousands of miles, with a minimum of expense and care.

Super-Sixes that have passed their 100-thousandth mile are numerous, and thousands of them are nearing their sixth year of service.

Hudson endurance is primarily due to a design that is exclusive. But it is vastly increased also by the fact that wear can always be taken up by devices for compensating adjustments. Thus it is simple and inexpensive to restore to its original mechanical newness.

These are reasons why the oldest Super-Sixes are in service today. And it is why Super-Sixes always bring high resale prices. For resale value is altogether determined by the mileage remaining in a car.

RACINE SHOWS HOW ANY CITY CAN PUT ITS UNEMPLOYED MEN TO WORK

By NORRIS QUINN

RACINE, Wis.—Up here they're naming cigars, streets and babies after Thomas M. Kearney, a Racine lawyer, who is the father of the Racine employment plan—an plan, any progressive city can emulate.

The fruits of the plan have been feeding the needy among 12,000 jobless men and their families.

Rotating men in jobs so that everyone is employed part of the time.

Stimulating municipal improvement and private enterprise with a view to making more jobs.

Last year Racine the biggest industrial city in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee, was faced with a serious problem. Eighty per cent of its working people were thrown out of their jobs. Some employees who had served 30 years were dismissed.

Study Made

A committee of 15 citizens was formed to study the situation. Kearney was chairman. Kearney and his associates worked out the Racine plan and presented it to Mayor A. J. Lunt and the city council.

The aldermen said the plan looked good but inquired mildly where the city could get money to put it through. Racine bankers answered that question. They told the council they would take up a $150,000 city bond issue, each bank taking a portion proportionate to its size.

So the city council passed the bond issue, got the money and the Racine plan started operation.

How Plan Works

Here's how it works:

Relief of needy cases is handled by the General Association, formerly a charitable organization. Families in need of food apply to Miss Catherine Mehder, director.

Miss Mehder, a trained social worker, makes a personal investigation. If the case is worthy, a ration card is given to the family.

Any tradesman in Racine will honor these ration cards.

The cards are renewed from week to week. The butchers and grocers are paid from the fund created by the bond issue.

The task of finding jobs was turned over to H. G. Presser, head of a local employment agency. Now Presser is the supreme employment dictator of Racine. He tells men where to go to work and tells them when to quit their jobs to make room for someone else.

Presser systematically rotates men on jobs. A man works one week, then another man takes the job. The next week the original man is put back again. So everybody's working part time.

Married Men Preferred

Married men are given preference. The bigger a man's family, the more days he's allowed to work. Single men are given restaurant meal tickets every week, enabling them to three substantial meals daily for seven days.

Here are some typical cards from Presser's files, showing the type of men he has to deal with:

A Polish moulder, 30 years old, laid off at Christmas. Worked off and on at odd jobs since. Given part time work.

An American janitor. Is buying home. Laid off at Christmas. Has suffered pneumonia, influenza and undergone operation. Given light work.

A Danish machinist. Out of work since May, 1920. Heavily in debt. Unemployed.

derwent operation. Given light work.

"I got a chance to do some good Americanization work," Presser says. "When I give a man a job I tell him it's time he became a citizen and advise him to go to night school."

"Professional beggars and hogs stand no chance under the Racine plan. We're weeding them out of our lists."

Open New Jobs

Kearney and his committee meanwhile are trying to create new jobs. They've induced the city to start paving and repairing public buildings. That means work for many. And they're trying to make Racine manufacturers forget post-war pessimism and start working with full forces again.

They've caused the Wisconsin Legislature to grant the unemployed six months' grace in paying taxes.

The Racine plan is working so well that scores of inquiries come in daily from cities where the unemployment situation is grave.

"Any city that has the courage to put out a bond issue and has bankers who'll take it up can work out the Racine plan," Kearney says.

Sister Knew

"Father knows you're going to marry my sister," said the little brother.

"But I didn't know it myself till a day or two ago," said the astonished suitor.

"Oh, so she's told you, too, has she?" replied the little brother.

Sarcastic

Beggar—"Ah, sir, I was like you. I was too fond of giving large sums of money to the poor."

NELSONS BLANKED IN SECOND GAME WITH GILKERSON CREW

VISITORS PLAY AIR TIGHT BALL IN FINAL GAME

Jackson Hurls Three Hit Game and Holds Locals Scoreless Friday, 4 to 0

ENTIRE SCORING OCCURS IN THE FOURTH FRAME

Moppy in Good Trim Pitches Tight Game

One big inning in which the Union Giants bunched two singles, a double and triple, gave the colored aggregation a second victory over the Nelsons Clothing company ball club at Copeland park Friday night, 4 to 0. It was apparent from the start that Jackson, visiting hurler, was in the mood for a shut out victory and his effectiveness with men on bases was evident. He held the locals to a no hit game until the seventh inning after which time they were allowed but three bingles. Jackson was credited with six strikeouts and in addition pitched for a three base hit in the fourth frame.

Moppy's work against the slugging team was consistent, fielding his position in excellent form in addition to holding the visitors to seven blows. Four of the seven hits chalked up by the colored aggregation were collected in the fourth frame when the hitting quart of Gilkerson's men netted them the only four tallies of the game. The game was marked by air tight ball on both sides of the bat.

The story of the Nelson defeat is told in short in the fact that on only one occasion did a runner venture to realms beyond second base. It took Freng to accomplish this in the eighth inning when he advanced to third after securing a double off Jackson. A lead off man in the visitors' prosperous lineup, Williams struck out. Jackson followed with a triple and scored on Poole's grounder to third. Poole was safe at first when the play was made for Jackson at home. Wilson singled followed by a similar smash by Jones, scoring.

Chicago firemen won the third and last game of a series here with the New York firemen, the score at the end of the eleven innings being six to four.

YANKEE DAVIS CUP TEAM OF PLAYERS ANNOUNCED TODAY

Tilden, Johnston, Williams, Watson and Washburn to Compose Defending Team

NEW YORK.—The American Davis cup defending team will consist of William T. Tilden II, William M. Johnston, R. Norris Williams II, and Watson M. Washburn, the United States Lawn Tennis association announced Friday night. The players were selected by unanimous decision of the Davis cup committee. Its choice was made known on the last day permitted by the cup regulations. The challenge round will be played at Forest Hills, N. Y., September 2, 3 and 5. The selecting committee consisted of Robert R. Wrenn, George W. Adee, Beals C. Wright, Samuel H. Ady and Harold H. Hackett.

Little Concern Over Tilden
There was no question of Tilden and Johnston making the team, Samuel Hardy, captain of last year's Davis cup team, declared. "Tilden's condition upon his return from England caused considerable uneasiness, but he has been resting most of the time since the Rhode Island state championship and should be in good shape in September."

Johnston is playing well and apparently is following his usual course. His season is timed so that he will reach his best form about September 1. With two singles players of such ability the committee's problem was to select the combination that would best support them in singles in case Tilden or Johnston should be incapacitated.

SPORT BRIEFS

Camels are made for Men who Think for Themselves

Such folks know real quality—and DEMAND it.
They prefer Camels because Camels give them the smoothest, mellowest smoke they can buy—because they love the mild, rich flavor of choicest tobaccos, perfectly blended—and because Camels leave NO CIGARETTY AFTERTASTE.

Like every man who does his own thinking, you want fine tobacco in your cigarettes. You'll find it in Camels.

And, mind you, no flashy package just for show. No extra wrappers! No costly frills. These things don't improve the smoke any more than premiums or coupons.

But QUALITY! Listen! That's CAMELS!
